Dairy Practices Council Works For Mutual Benefit

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Dairy Practices Council (DPC) held its annual convention Nov. 5 at the Harrisburg East Holiday Inn to continue its ongoing technical work in providing practical guidelines for dairy practices, to be informed about issues of concern, and to hold its annual business meeting.

The national DPC organization is an all-volunteer, collaborative effort of three distinct sectors of the dairy business — the dairy production and manufacturing industry, the regulatory agencies concerned with the dairy industry, and dairy education institutions and individuals.

Through a number of standing committees, called task forces, the DPC has over the years put together a series of instructional and technical publications that serve all concerned with the dairy industry as the most accurate and up-to-date sources of information.

The publications contain information that is not readily available through the land grant university extension system.

(Over the years, especially with a lack of federal support funding, the extension system has become involved with and dependent upon the creation of research publication and outreach nonprofit organizations, such as the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service and the Mastitis Council. These organizations publish technical reports and charge a compensatory fee. The publications contain useful information that otherwise would not be accessible to producers or the general industry.)

Further, the information presented by DPC has the benefit of being peer reviewed, which adds tremendously to its soundness.

Especially with today's new communications technology, the lack of distinction between scientifically sound information and commercialized information cleverly designed to persuade and convince consumers has allowed a mushrooming growth of businesses with names sounding deceptively legitimate.

The DPC is a multiple industry organization devoted to researching and evaluating information that has proven or repeated performance. In addition, the organizations that comprise the DPC membership use the information DPC publishes, they don't just help make it to sell.

The slogan of the DPC is "Quality and uniformity through education and cooperation."

The goal is to foster the growth of quality dairy product through quality and uniform practices.

Currently DPC offers 66 publications, some updated annually, others updated every five years, depending on advances and the nature of the subject matter.

Topics range from planning freestall dairy barns to trouble

USDA NRCS, EPA To Hold Meeting On AFO Proposal

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — One of six national meetings concerning the federal government's proposals for nutrient management planning for livestock operations is set to be held from 2-5 p.m.Tuesday, Nov. 17, at the Sheraton Inn Harrisburg East, in Union Deposit.

Earlier this year, a joint proposal from the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency was published in the Federal Register for a strategy by the agencies to use existing authorities and programs to encourage all livestock farmers to adopt nutrient management plans.

The joint proposal is called the USDA/EPA Unified Joint Strategy for Animal Feeding Operations.

The meeting about the strategy is being called a "public listening session," and the purpose is to collect public comment.

The session is open to all, though those wishing to speak need to provide advanced notice in writing, or register to speak upon arriving at the meeting.

Those wishing to make oral presentations during Tuesday's public listening session should forward a written request to Jane Oertly, State Conservationist, Natural Resources Conservation Service, One Credit Union Place, Suite 340, Harrisburg, PA 17110, or call (717) 237-2202.

Presentations will be limited to 3-5 minutes depending on the number of people wishing to speak. Participants may also register to speak upon arrival at the meeting. Requests will behonored on a first-come, first-service basis.

Written comments can be mailed to Denise Coleman, program analyst, Natural Resources Conservation Service, ATTN: AFO, P.O. Box 2890, Washington, D.C. 20013-2890.

Written comments are being accepted by USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) until Jan. 19, 1999.

Pennsylvania Simmental Genetics Make New Home In Poland

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELVERSON (Chester Co.) — For the Jacek Ostaszewski (pronounced "oshefski") family from Bialstok, a town in the northeast region of Poland, an American family has given them a new lease on farm life.

In an area previously dominated by state-owned communist farmland, a farm family is hoping to adopt western-style management — and bring in proven western-style beef herd genetics.

In mid-October, shipments of fullblood Simmental embryos and semen were made to the Ostaszewski family from Warren Point, a fullblood Simmental cow/calf farm operated by Bill, Karen, Dean, and Christopher Flagg in Elverson.

With the help of Em Tran, Inc., Elizabethtown, through Steve Mower, director of export promotions, Warren Point shipped the beef genetics to help improve the beef herd in the former communist country, which has very few real beef cows.

The bulk of the embryos were from Athena, the Flagg's 19-year-old fullblood cow whose dam was imported from the Fleckveih region of southern Germany in the mid-1970s. According to Karen Flagg, Athena's sons have consistently excelled when placed on test at the Penn State Meat Animal Evaluation Center.

Semen from one of those sons, purchased by Sire Power, Tunkhannock, was also shipped to Poland.

At an interview at the Flagg farm in Elverson, Bill and Karen spoke about the challenge of delivering Simmental beef genetics to a family in Poland.

"The Polish people and government are interested in getting new technology from other parts of the world," Karen said. Since the fall of communism, the beef breeders are welcoming in new technology and other parts of the world to "take a lead in the new govern-

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wed Nov 11, 1998
USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Little change in wheat bids today but prices continued stronger. Indications that Morocco and Tunisia bought EU wheat overnight kept wheat bids from jumping higher. However, 80 million bushels are still needed to fill Russian aid package. Corn and soybean bids were higher on spillover support from Tuesday's trading. Wheat steady to 4 cents higher. Corn 4 to 5 cents higher. Sorghum 6 to 9 cents higher. Soy- beans 6 to 9 cents higher. Fund buying on the Board and tight farmer holding were factors in higher corn bids, Wednesday. Some contract highs were set for soybeans that haven't been see since July. USDA's cut in estimated ending stocks figures yesterday carried over, moving bids higher. Higher soy- bean meal bids offered additional support to bids.

Oklahoma City Feeder Cattle

Oklahoma City, OK
Wed Nov 11, 1998
USDA-OK Dept Ag Market News
Oklahoma National Stockyards - Weekly Cattle Summary

Compared to last week: Feeder steers and heifers 1.00-3.00 lower. Wet feedlot conditions and snow storm in north turned feeder demand light. Steer and heifer calves steady to 2.00 higher. Demand good for lighter calves suitable for early wheat pasture, but fairly light for heavy end of calves. Feeder cattle quality mostly plain, few either attractive or thin. Calf quality genetically average to attractive. However, calf flesh condition moderate to fleshy and this several degrees more than last week. Bulk supply continues calves. Slaughter cows 1.00-2.00 higher. Slaughter bulls 1.00 higher. Demand good from packers, feeders, and replacement buyers. Buying momentum has switched from the north to the south as south Texas packers become aggressive for cows at auction to fill their slaughter needs. This the first time since drought runs began in spring that south Texas has been a power player in this cow market. 55 percent of the 1,400 cows and bulls went to packers with balance to feeders, grazers, and cow-calf operators. Receipts this week 14,100; last week 8,924; last year 12,886. Supply consisted of 38 percent yearlings and calves over 600 lbs; 52 percent calves under 600 lbs; 10 percent cows and bulls. Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

Hershey Equipment - Best Kept Secret In The Broiler Industry

Big Dutchman®

UniGROW360 BROILER FEEDING SYSTEM.

After years of Broiler Pan Evolution, It's Time for a Revolution.

Everyone also knows manually adjusting hundreds of pans every couple of days is unrealistic. The income you would gain in feed efficiency would be lost several times over in labor costs. That's why the UniGROW360 system is so revolutionary.

NOW, YOU CAN QUICKLY AND EASILY ADJUST THE FEED LEVEL AS OFTEN AS YOU LIKE

This special winch enables simultaneous feed level adjustment of a line of UniGROW360 pans with a simple turn of the crank. Unlike other systems, it is not dependent upon level floors.

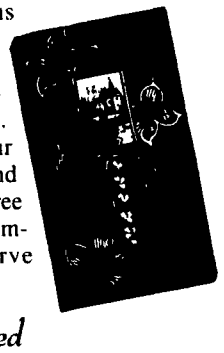
The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

NOVEMBER 16-22, 1998

ST. HILDA, NOV. 18.

CLOAK AND DAGUERRE?

No mystery here, but Louis-Jacques-Mandé Daguerre probably wore a cloak when he was perfecting his metal plate "daguerreotypes." Born on November 18, 1789, Daguerre was a successful French painter who invented the first technique to make permanent photographic images. Honor his memory this Thanksgiving by using part of your holiday to sort through that shoebox full of family photographs you've collected. Help family members name their distant relatives, then collect and label the best prints in an acid-free binder, or check out the new computer scanners that can preserve photographs even longer



"This is not I . . . retouched and smoothed and prettified to please . . ."

– Berton Braley "Sonnet To a Photographer"

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Don't be afraid to crop photos to maximize space and interest.

HEALTHIER COLESLAW

- 1 cup grated carrots
- 1 cup grated cabbage
- 1/3 cup drained, mashed tofu
- 1/3 cup chopped scallions
- 1/4 cup dulse flakes (flaked kelp)
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon mustard powder
- 1/2 to 3/4 cup soy (or other) mayonnaise

Mix all ingredients and serve as a side salad or as a sandwich filling in pita pockets or tortilla wraps

Makes 4 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

As November 21, so the winter.

As many days from the first snow to the next new Moon, so many times will it thaw during winter.

When in November the water rises, it will show itself the whole winter.

Much fog in autumn, much snow in winter.

As November, so the following March.

OPINION

Not Too Much To Expect

After mandatory support of the Beef Checkoff for the past 10 years, many beef producers are questioning whether the $1 billion they have thrown at promotion and research have done them any good. With the price of cattle at the farm gate this suspicion does not seem out of place. Of course, to raise this subject immediately puts us in the middle of two groups of beef producers.

On one hand, beef producers on the National Cattlemen's Beef Research and Promotion Board and their supporters believe their work has been needed and is needed in the future to keep the industry from being in worse condition. But smaller producers with less than 100 cows often feel the cost/price squeeze and wonder if the money taken out at the farm level is worth the expense.

We have heard a lot of name calling and finger pointing on this issue which we refuse to do. We know in today's economy, a lot of money is spent to promote competing food products. We have seen the "What's For Dinner?," and "Where's the Beef?" advertising.

Nevertheless, in our free enterprise system, the people who pay the bills have a right to say if they are satisfied with the program. In addition, no properly run program should be without reviews and proper ownership checks to make sure the goal and reasons for the program have been achieved.

Most producers favored the check-off when it was initiated 10 years ago. Most of them may still favor it and be willing to continue to pay the $1 per head out of pocket when they market their cattle. But we don't know this until we have a mid-term referendum to give everyone the opportunity to vote on the checkoff.

We don't think it's too much to expect a producer who is paying for the program to be allowed to say he likes it, does not like it. The most obvious way suspicion could be raised against the managers of the program would be if political and beef industry power brokers refuse to let it come to a vote.

Now Is The Time

To Check Manure Hauling

Although transporting manure in a conventional manure spreader is normally uneventful, it is not without risk and problems, according to Chester Hughes, Lancaster County Extension Livestock Agent. Occasionally manure drips off equipment or tire onto the highway.

This is a situation that should never occur Other less likely incidents include: 1 traffic accidents which could lead to a major manure discharge; 2. accidental valve opening; 3. valve failure; and 4. pipe failures.

Any of these problems requires quick corrective action by the farmer to minimize environmental impact and negative public action. You should have a plan, including phone numbers of key people, on how you will deal with a manure spillage.

Once the manure storage is emptied and manure hauling is completed for an extended period of time, clean the spreader. Clean equipment conveys a professional attitude and well run business. Rinsing the inside, of equipment can also extend its useful life.

The critical limits for manure transportation, like those for storage, provides little room for error. Manure must be transported without leakage, discharge or spills.

To Check Manure Disposal Systems

Manure may also be transported in irrigation or recycle systems by pumping the manure through a hose or series of pipes. according to Chester Hughes. Lancaster County Extension Livestock Agent.

Above ground irrigation piping should be inspected before and during each use for dents, gouges and corrosion These defects can cause sudden ruptures of the pipelines during use.

Underground piping systems should have the risers and air release valves inspected before and during use. Air release valves are especially prone to leakage. Sometimes leakage is obvious. Other times watching for stains on vegetation or excessive growth will provide evidence of previous discharges or intermittent leakage.

Monitor spraying to avoid excessive applications of manure and run off.

To Control Rodents in Corn Crib

Mice and other rodents take a heavy toll on corn stored as ear corn in wooden and metal corn cribs. According to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, the corn crib provides an ideal habitat for rodents. It provides sheltered nesting areas out of the cold winter weather along with an endless supply of food.

The control of mice and rodents under these conditions is very difficult. However, several things may be done to help keep rodent populations down. First, traps may be used monitor the extent of the problem. Trapping will do little to eliminate the problem.

Second, screening wherever possible to exclude rodents will also help keep numbers in control. However, when a severe problem exists, the commercial use of tracking powder has been the most effective means of control. Remember to always read and follow the directions when using any pesticide.

Remember, rodents are a major carrier of salmonella and other bacteria and disease organisms. Thus, rodent control is a very important first step in food safety.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "We know what a person thinks not when he tells us what he thinks, but by his actions."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

IF I WERE JEREMIAH

November 15, 1998

Background Scripture:
Jeremiah 19: 21:1-10
Devotional Reading:
Joshua 24:14-28

If I were Jeremiah, what would I have done when he came saying to me: "Go, buy a potter's earthen flask . . . and proclaim there the words that I tell you" (19:1,2)? I wonder.

Note that God did not tell Jeremiah he wanted him to preach a sermon. True, some sermons can be prophetic, but the sermons generally come from pastors, not prophets—and there is a real difference between the two. A pastor is regarded as the shepherd of his flock, while the popular image of the prophet is that of a danger to the flock.

Today, as in the time of Jeremiah, people fear prophecy because they instinctively think of it as bad news. Often in the Old Testament it was bad news, but that was only because the life of the people of Israel was also bad news.

So, if I were Jeremiah I would assume that God wanted me for an unpleasant task. Unfortunately, when God wants us, there is really no place to hide.

Some people think that the role of a prophet is enjoyable, but not I. Perhaps it is temporarily satisfying to pronounce judgement on others—maybe a boost to one's own ego—but most of us do not like to alienate ourselves from people if we can help it. No one listens to a true prophet and then runs up to him when he's finished and asks him for his autograph! Prophecy wins about as many friends as being a tax collector!

WORDS OF DOOM!

But God didn't say, "If you'd like to do me a favor . . ." No, God said "Go. . . !" and the message he had for Jeremiah was as unpopular as it could be. Unlike some prophesies, this was not a call to change or else, but the pronouncement of a doom that seemed unalterable. Breaking the flask in the sight of those listening to him, Jeremiah was to say: "Thus says the Lord of Hosts: So will I break this people and this city, as one breaks a potters vessel, so that it can never be mended" (19:11).

The message was terrible but the situation that provoked the message was more terrible still. The people have been worshipping Baal and offering their own people as sacrifices. They probably still professed to believe and serve the God of their Hebrew forefathers, but the real questions were: from where were they taking their values? To whom were they turning for help? Whom did they aim to please?

Those same questions could be asked of us. Despite our protestations of loyalty to the Lord, where do we get our values? To whom or to what do we turn for help? And whom do we aim to please? Be assured, whatever our vocation, if we ask these questions today people will get upset with us just as they got upset with Jeremiah. Pashhur, the high priest in the temple, beat him and had him put in the stocks at the upper Benjamin Gate.

TIME TO QUIT?

Pashhur tried to intimidate Jeremiah and initially it seemed he succeeded for Jeremiah complained bitterly to God: "O Lord, thou has deceived me . . . thou art stronger than I, and thou hast prevailed. I have become a laughingstock all the day; everyone mocks me" (20:7). If I were Jeremiah I would want to quit at that point.

But Jeremiah couldn't quit: "If I say, 'I will not mention him, or speak anymore in his name,' there is in my heart as it were a burning fire shut up in my bones, and I am weary of holding it in, and I cannot" (20:9). So, the next time the Lord came saying, to Jeremiah, "Go . . .," Jeremiah went and did what God commanded.

The question is not really, "If I were Jeremiah," but if I am me, what do I say when God says "Go!"?

Liquid Opportunities With AerWay

AerWay makes manure nutrient incorporation faster, easier, and more effective

Patented AerWay "shattertines" make it possible

I chose the AerWay because it puts me in control of my liquid manure management system. This is particularly important as my farm is located next to a large Water Resource Shed Prior to using the AerWay I had problems with soil compaction, manure run-off, ponding and loss of valuable nutrients We spread between 3000 - 3500 U S Gal per acre The AerWay helped with the above problems, as well as reducing my tillage, fuel and labour expenses

With less time spent in the field I am able to spend more time with my Hog Operation. The AerWay blends perfectly with my Conservation and Environmental Farm Plan

Announcing New Products for Dairy, Swine & Poultry Producers.

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer these products to meet your nutritional needs. Manufacturing these products ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

GOLDEN PRO 46 XP
This natural, mechanically extruded and expelled soybean product is experiencing great acceptance with local dairymen. A course golden colored meal with a 6% fat content, Golden Pro 46 XP is extremely palatable. Golden Pro 46 XP is a natural way to bring the value of high bypass protein into diets that require a lower fat level.

CRUDE SOYBEAN OIL
A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. A natural alternative to animals fats, this oil provides needed energy in various rations.

GOLDEN MEAL 40
An 18 percent fat content along with a 40 percent crude protein makes this mechanically extruded meal product a valuable component in a variety of rations. Full fat content gives you a high level of digestible energy, while high temperature extruding ruptures the oil cells for better nutritional absorbtions.

To make these products available, and to help you utilize your home raised soybeans Keystone Mills announces its

Soybean Exchange Program

As manufacturers and distributers of Golden Pro 46 XP and Golden Meal 40, we are anxious for you to try our products. We are offering a soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products

Learn To Transfer Farm Business At Seminar

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — An educational seminar will focus on the financial and tax issues related to the transfer of the farm business.

At some point, all farm business owners will exit their business. There are many reasons for exiting the business. Maybe the desire is to transfer the business to the next generation or to some non-family member. Or the goal may be to sell everything and move on to something else. Whatever the reason, proper planning and organization can make for a smooth and orderly transition.

A straightforward approach to these issues will be conducted Friday, Nov. 20 at the Lighthouse Restaurant, Chambersburg. The speaker will be Dr. Larry Jenkins, farm management specialist, Penn State. Anyone operating a farm business would find the information useful.

Plan to arrive at 9:30 a.m. for coffee and tea. The program will begin at 9:45 a.m. Lunch will be Dutch treat. Adjournment is set for 2 p.m. The restaurant is located two miles north of Chambersburg along route 11.

Call the Franklin County Extension Office at (717) 263-9226 by Nov. 17 to indicate how many are planning to attend from your family.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

QUESTION: Recently we purchased a TMR (totally mixed ration) mixer and started to manage our feeding accordingly. Almost immediately, our cows got bellyaches and would lie down, kick at their stomachs and bawl. We then started to feed more often and the problem subsided. I've read where producers feed once per day and get along fine. What could be wrong in our case?

ANSWER: In this case, the key word is "feeding."

Most often when problems like this occur, the feed man or person balancing the diet is to blame, in the eyes of the dairyman. The feeders at this farm are to be commended on recognizing the problem to be in the on-farm feeding management.

The paper ration that was created looked to have all the necessary components for successful performance. The main ingredients were corn silage, dry hay, and grain.

When trying out the new mixer, corn silage went in first, followed by grain, and lastly the dry hay.

Trouble started when the hay would not mix in, but rather balled up by itself in the allotted mixing time of 3 to 4 minutes.

Because problems can occur with the hay mixing into the TMR, it may be removed and fed separately. This is one of the most common mistakes in TMR feeding.

TMR, as we all know, can only work to its full potential when total adhesion (of ingredients) occurs.

This herd was used to cafeteria-style feeding of individual ingredients, fed multiple times per day.

Success in this feeding style varies according to management capabilities. Switching to a TMR system also carries along with it a need for topnotch feeding management.

This farm had been very successful in managing their previous feeding program. Switching to a TMR system left them with the notion that a safer feed management program was in place and good cow sense was temporarily abandoned.

Dairyman To Dairyman

GEORGE CUDOC
PA DHIA
Consulting
Dairyman

We talked about the type of program they want for the future and this advise was offered:

- When possible, stress the total in TMR.
- For better blending, put long hay or chopped hay, as in this case, in the mixer first.
- Determine mixing time for your farm and don't rely totally on the manufacturer's suggestions.
- Load into mixer with your wet source of forage before the concentrate portion.
- When using only dry hay to grain, use a binder product such as molasses, wet brewers, or tallow.
- Feed for a minimum of 5 percent refusal and this should be the same as beginning feed.
- Most importantly, inform your feed programmer of any need or desire to alter your TMR from what is in your plan. As an example, if you fed your hay outside of your TMR mix as this herd did, then make allowances, such as not feeding the corn silage and grain mix (that was considered a TMR) all at one time. Force cows to eat the long fiber that they need to maintain rumen health.

These are some tips offered to this farm to solve a feed management and delivery problem.

As one last throught, keep in mind that a TMR has the same requirement for details as much as any other type of feeding program.

As a TMR user of 20 years, I've probably made most of the mistakes that I hear of today in the field. The single most costly thing about a TMR is not the $13,000 or higher price tag on the mixer, but rather the failure to use a TMR the way it works best — total!

Calving Interval - Article 23

As you plan and manage your herd's reproductive program, set some goals for yourself, such as

- Heat detection rates _____ %
- Conception rates _____ %
- Days open _____ days
- Calving intervals _____ mo
- Pregnancy success rate _____ %

Let us begin by looking at calving interval, but rather than focusing on calving interval, a more important question might be, when do you want cows to calve? Consider such things as

- Ideal seasons of the year to avoid problems associated with heat stress When do cows have fewer calving problems and fewer breeding problems? When is it easier to get them into peak flow?
- Seasonal milk prices Is it beneficial to produce the most milk when milk prices are highest? Also consider the amount of calving facilities needed if you have a seasonal herd
- Availability and price of feeds Do you want to produce the most milk when purchased feed prices are lowest, or during the grazing season when the need for purchased feeds is less?
- With higher producing cows and with the availability of more and more management tools, such as BST, a short calving interval may not necessarily be the most profitable, especially if cows continue to milk 70-80 lb or more at 300 days into lactation

What is the maximum days open you can tolerate to achieve your desired calving interval? What window of time do you need for getting cows settled on time? Table 1 can help you calculate this For a 13 month calving interval, cows have to be settled by 109 days after calving (days open) If your volunteer waiting period (VWP) from date of calving is 60 days, then you have a 49 day window of time to catch the cow in heat, to service her, and to get her settled That's slightly more than 2 heat periods What are your goals and how well are you achieving them?

Berks County Conservancy Sets Annual Dinner

WYOMISSING (Berks Co.) — Mark your calendars for the Berks County Conservancy's premier 1998 event, its annual dinner on Wednesday, Dec. 2.

This year we will celebrate Reading's 250th Anniversary and at the same time kick-off the Conservancy's own upcoming 25th anniversary in 1999.

The dinner will be held from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the magnificently renovated Lincoln Plaza Hotel, Reading's most recent preservation triumph, in the Presidential Ballroom. The hotel is located at Fifth & Washington Streets, Reading.

The speaker is the Honorable William A. Johnson, Jr., mayor of Rochester, N.Y. Johnson has received national attention for his dynamic leadership. Elected to office in 1994, he has tackled the big issues head on and is making remarkable progress.

Johnson made accessible government one of his top priorities, interacting with a broad cross-section of community residents from school children to senior citizens, corporate executives to the unemployed. By making more than 3,000 public appearances throughout the region, he has opened lines of communication and generated grassroots support.

He had concentrated on areas deemed most critical to improving the quality of life for city residents: education, economic development, public safety, human services, and regional cooperation. His Neighbors Building Neighborhoods program has stimulated affordable housing development, and his business and employment programs have resulted in nearly $100 million being invested and more than 1,000 new jobs being cited in the past two years.

At a regional level, he is trying to address sprawl and encourage "smart growth" in Greater Rochester and the surrounding counties, including the nearby Finger Lakes district, an nationally important agricultural area. He personally visits every community that invites him, presenting his slide show on sprawl, and promoting regional solutions. "The global economy is putting all of us — cities, suburbs, and villages — on the same team" he said. "It's time for Greater Rochester to play the game to win."

The meeting agenda includes the annual election of officers and new board members, and a number of featured award presentations. Cost is $30 per person and reservation forms may be obtained by calling the Conservancy at (610) 372-4992, or stopping by the office in Wyomissing. Reservation deadline is Nov. 25.

Lancaster Farmland Trust At Land Conservation Conference

MADISON, Wis. — Just as the issue of sprawl and the unremitting loss of open space are grabbing the public's attention, Tom Stouffer, Karen Weiss, and Heidi Lundy of Lancaster Farmland Trust joined more than 1,000 officials, landowners, and volunteers from hundreds of land trusts at the 1998 National Land Trust Rally, the nation's largest gathering devoted to land conservation.

The conference was held Oct. 17-20 in Madison, Wis. Stouffer is executive director of Lancaster Farmland Trust, Weiss is director of land preservation, and Lundy is a preservation specialist.

"The Rally is always instructive and inspirational," said Weiss. "But this year, it was especially important because the Land Trust Alliance, which sponsors the Rally, just released new information about substantial gains made by local and regional land trusts during the past decade."

The Land Trust Alliance (LTA), the national organization working to strengthen the land conservation movement and land trusts across the country, released Oct. 1 its Land Trust Census, showing that local and regional land trusts conserved more than 4.7 million acres, a 135 percent increase over acreage protected as of 1988. The Census also reported that the number of land trusts has grown to 1,213, a 63 percent increase over the 7653 land trusts operating in 1988.

The Census shows that in Pennsylvania, 75 land trusts have protected more than 59,000 acres—nearly a tenth of that the agricultural land (86 farms) preserved by Lancaster Farmland Trust.

Stouffer, Weiss and Lundy attended a number of workshops and field trips during the Rally, and Stouffer presented a session entitled "Saving Farms and Farmers, Not Just Farmland." The key element of the session was Stouffer's focus on the need for continuing benefits to owners of preserved farms—benefits should eventually help reduce up-front easement costs.

Hatfield To Require Level III Certification

HATFIELD (Montgomery Co.) — Hatfield Quality Meats has announced that, effective July 1, 1999, all producers marketing hogs to the company are required to have Pork Quality Assurance (PQA) Level III certification.

In March this year, National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) delegates passed a resolution to encourage packers across the U.S. to require PQA Level III certification for all producers by Jan. 1, 2000.

Hatfield supports the program and has encouraged producers to become PQA Level III Certified. In fact, according to a company news release of Oct. 5, many of the producers marketing hogs to the company have done so. Two-thirds of the hogs marketed at Hatfield are marketed by Level III producers.

The company noted that Level III certification is not difficult to achieve. Producers must complete an educational program and have a verifier confirm their understanding of the outlined good production practices.

Hatfield plans to sponsor several meetings throughout the company's local buying area to help producers become Level III certified.

If you are not already Level III, or if your certification is due to expire, according to Hatfield, you will receive an invitation to attend one of these meetings.

Dairylea Reviews Year

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairylea Cooperative Inc. posted a strong financial and operational performance in fiscal year 1998, according to Clyde E. Rutherford, the cooperative's president at their annual meeting in Liverpool, N.Y.

During his presentation to members and industry leaders, Rutherford noted that despite the hectic pace change within the dairy industry, the cooperative remains focused on maximizing net returns at the farm and committed to improving the quality of life for all of its members by being financially sound, paying members a highly competitive price for their milk, providing programs and services that have a positive impact on members' bottom line, and being an advocate for farmers on legislative matters.

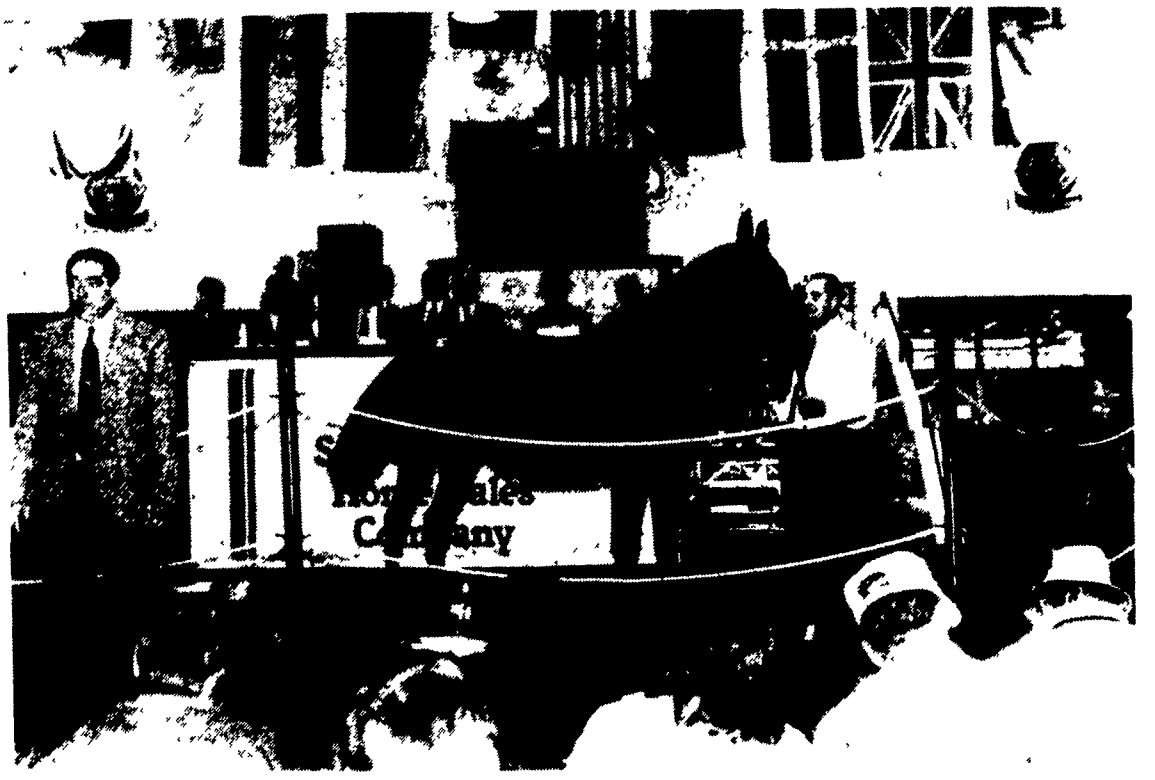
Profits for the cooperative totaled $1.4 million, with premiums paid to members totaling $23 million. Dairylea marketed 10 percent more milk than last year — totaling almost five billion pounds. The cooperative's milk sales increased to approximately $723 million.

Rutherford reported that most of the cooperative's existing programs and services for members were upgraded, expanded and enhanced in 1998. Fixed forward price contracting, bulk buying and leasing programs all saw an increase in member activity.

Additionally, Rutherford reported, Dairylea's insurance subsidiary, Agri-Service Agencies (ASA), continued its pattern of growth and now insures more than 25,000 farmers and agribusiness owners nationally. He pointed out that ASA is a recognized leader in providing cost-saving workers' compensation coverage. At the same time, ASA continues to expand its product line, and now offers long term care insurance that covers the cost of nursing home and other long-term care services.

According to Rutherford, Dairy One — Dairylea's information technology venture with Northeast DHIA — expanded and improved laboratory testing, information reporting and support services. Similarly, he reported that Dairylea's livestock marketing subsidiary — Empire Livestock Marketing Inc. — experienced heightened activity and business volume, while posting solid profits.

Dairylea Cooperative is a Syracuse-based agricultural service organization, cooperatively owned by more than 2,800 farmers throughout the Northeast.



$760,000 For This Standardbred Mare

Continetal Victory is led around the auction ring in the Small Arena of the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg, as auctioneers with Vernon Martin and Associates seek any additional interest in the horse, as the $760,000 price is posted on the digital display above the horse and auctioneers. The display also indicates the sales catalog number and the fact that the mare is in foal. The 60th anniversary Harrisburg auction of the Standardbred Horse Sales Company, sponsored by Hanover Shoe Farms in York County, saw one of the best breeding mares ever offered sell for $760,000, the second-highest price paid for a Standardbred at auction, according to the breed registry organization, U.S. Trotters Association.

Bureau Meets, Passes Resolutions

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

WALKERSVILLE, Md. – Charles Smith, Jefferson, is the new president of the Frederick County Farm Bureau. Smith and other officers and directors were elected during the 77th annual dinner meeting of the Farm Bureau at the firehall in Walkersville. About 325 people attended the event.

Smith will take over the position vacated by outgoing president Michael Wilcom. John Bell will be the new first vice president, and Charles Black will be the second vice president. Don Easterday will continue to serve as secretary-treasurer

New directors elected for the five areas of the county are group 1 - Harold Lenhart, Sr.; group 2 - Gordon Flickinger; group 3 - Linwood Offutt, Jr.; group 4 - Mehrl Mayne, Jr.; and group 5 - Leon Remsburg

Steven Weber, president of Maryland Farm Bureau, commended the Frederick County members for surpassing their membership quota and registering a membership of more than 1,100. "We have been in a three-year membership slide, and your work really came to our aid," said Weber Laura Ruhlman, Farm Bureau field representative, called Frederick County "an example for every other county" in their membership initiative

Weber summed up the past year's legislative efforts as a mixed bag. "We got a very important dairy bill passed, and the right-to-farm ordinance" Those were very positive pieces of legislation. But the mandatory nutrient management bill that was passed went a little overboard, according to president Weber "We're people that take these problems seriously. Agriculture has tried to be responsible. We know we have a job to do as far as nutrient management Unfortunately, we're going to wind up with a burden of regulatory responsibilities. I think they did the right thing by addressing nutrient management, but I think they just went a little bit overboard," said Weber

United States representative Roscoe Barlett attended the meeting, and was presented with the first ever "Friend of the Farmer" Farm Bureau Award Bartlett said he considers himself a fellow farmer.

Representative Bartlett credited Thomas Jefferson's ideas on agrarian society as ideals we should not lose sight of today. Bartlett linked Jefferson's ideas to today's concerns with urban sprawl, farmland preservation, and profitable agriculture.

"He wanted a country that was essentially an agrarian society, with just enough cities to produce the equipment necessary for farming," said Bartlett. "He didn't want his new country to be blighted by the decadence of cities. Now our challenge is to keep what we've got. Now we're challenged at every level of government to keep what we've got. Thomas Jefferson was right — a nation that loses its agricultural base has lost a very valuable resource. We've got to turn something around so that agriculture and the stability it provides will be around in the future.

Frederick County commissioners were also honored during the evening program for their support of agriculture. Mark Hoke, chair of the commissioners, accepted a plaque presented by Michael Wilcom in appreciation of the commissioners' efforts in establishing the right-to-farm bill, the free day for farmers at the landfill, and the haylift. The haylift, started last year to help farmers during drought years, was given matching funds of $20,000 by the commissioners to buy hay. Hoke said that supporting the haylift was one issue where the commissioners all voted unanimously, and said that in itself was something to celebrate

Larry Howard spoke to the group on the Farm Bureau lime program. The lime program makes hydrated, pharmaceutical grade lime available to farmers The lime is a by product from refining Domino sugar One ton of the lime is 26 percent calcium oxide, and is equivalent to applying 1/2 ton of regular lime, said Howard. There is a 23-25 ton minimum order, and prices vary with the distance from Baltimore, starting at 3.40 per ton. It is not necessary to be a Farm Bureau member to get the lime, and so far more than 24,000 tons have been ordered. For each ton ordered, Frederick County Farm Bureau gets 10 cents Howard can be reached at (301) 662-8547 for more information

Gold star awards were presented to the following members by Mark Zuzik; Farm Bureau administrator; Franklin Gladhill - public affairs; William Fouche - membership; Charles C. Smith - national affairs; Marie Geisinger - information; Louise Stup - women's committee; Scott Hipkins - young farmers; Elwood Hipkins - discussion group; Joe Free - service to member; and Nick Nicholson - service to member.

The women's committee elected officers and directors. Remaining in office as officers are Louise Stup, chairperson; Evelyn Wilcom, vice chairperson; Terrie Stup, recording secretary; and Louise Ediger, treasurer. Directors elected for the five regional groups are group 1- - Brenda Nowell; group 2 - Cindy Rhoderick; group 3 - Joanne Guyton; group 4 - Hane Smith; and group 5 - Audrey Wolfe.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to: Trego Zimmerman, past first vice president; Gordon Flickinger, retiring second vice president; Donald Lenhart, retiring board member; Charles Black, retiring from the board of directors; Bill Fouche, membership; David Haker, board of directors; John Burrier, board of directors; and Michael Wilcom, retiring president of Frederick County Farm Bureau.

New resolutions adopted by the Frederick County Farm bureau include those to support a BFP price for milk of $14.50, to delete the word "contiguous" from dairy compact legislation, to support the Dept. of Agriculture Export Incentive program and Fast Track, to waive or modify the cattle sale checkoff, to oppose phosphorous-based nutrient management plans until more research is done, to control wildlife, to support the protection of property rights, to encourage deer carcass use by charities, to lessen restrictions on farm trucks, to urge the government to abide by noxious weed control laws on government owned lands, and to protect insurance coverage by "Act of God" losses.

Officers and directors of Frederick County Farm bureau. From left, Charles C. Smith, president; John Bell, first vice president; Charles Black, second vice president; Leon Remsburg, director of group 5; Gordon Flickinger, director of group 2; Linwood Offutt, director of group 5; Gordon Flickinger, director of group 2; Linwood Offutt, director of group 3; Don Easterday, secretary-treasurer; and Harold Lenhart, director of group 1. Mehrl Mayne, elected as director of group 4, was not in attendance.

Rep. Roscoe Bartlett, was honored with the first-ever "Friend of the Farmer" Award from Farm Bureau.

Don't Fear Dairy Options Pilot Contract

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Dairy farmers receiving letters from the U.S. Department of Agriculture concerning the upcoming Dairy Options Pilot Program (DOPP) shouldn't fear signing a "contract" included in the letter, according to a Penn State University agriculture economics specialist.

According to Bob Parsons, a Penn State agricultural economist, the contract is not a binding document requiring participation in the program. It does not require any commitment by farmers with an interest in the program.

The contract is essentially a registration form to attend one of the county-level producer meetings scheduled to be held the first week in January.

It should be considered the same as a meeting registration form.

He said, "Do not reject the letter upon opening it. Stop and consider that if you want to learn about (dairy) options, this is a great opportunity. If you have any questions, call the local extension office."

In order to transition dairy producers away from federal commodity support programs, and to provide them with tools for managing their business risk, a number of sources have recommended purchasing options on production, as a means for controlling profit extremes — up and down.

While dairy producers are currently receiving relatively high prices for milk and input prices have dropped — grain prices have dropped tremendously — the lack of governmental price-stabilizing programs allows supply and demand swings in producer prices, and that puts producers at high risk of failing to cash flow debt during low-price periods.

The dairy options pilot program is part of a national test to determine if farmers can use actual options contracts successfully to manage price.

The program is designed so that those who are eligible to participate are more or less to be held harmless during the pilot period.

Participating counties have been announcing scheduled informational meetings to be held the first week of January.

Contact a local extension office for more information.

In Pennsylvania, participating counties are Berks, Bradford, Crawford, Chester, Franklin and Lancaster.

In New York, counties are Chautaugua, Jefferson, Lewis, Oneida, St. Lawrence, Steuben.

Other states involved with the pilot program are California, Minnesota, Texas, Vermont and Wisconsin.

The program is for producers in eligible counties who produce at least 100,000 pounds of milk over a six-month period, as well as licensed brokers who are in good standing with the National Futures Association.

The purpose of DOPP is to help farmers manage price risk. The program is to offer producers first-hand experience in trading options contracts for a period of six to eight months.

Options contracts create for the producer a price floor by providing the right, but not obligation, to sell at a specified price.

Trends In Dairy Business

In addition to the many task force meetings held during the convention, some time was allotted for general session speakers.

Of particular interest, given the topical nature of their subjects, were talks given by Donald Berg, vice president of milk procurement and sales for Land O' Lakes Cooperative Inc.; and Ken Becker, executive director of the Northeast Dairy Compact.

In his presentation, Berg avoided making direct statements about what future plans were being considered by the Land O' Lakes cooperative, instead highlighting a variety of business aspects that indicate continuing consolidation of the industry and further integration.

Assuming broad knowledge of the merger-mania within the dairy production and service sectors, especially with cooperatives, that has happened during the past five years, Berg said that it doesn't appear it will slow down.

He said that recently, he has been involved with a number of producers meetings and has come away with essentially two messages from producers and employees — they want to be told that the current fast pace uncertainty is just a point in time and things will go back to normal; or they believe that the industry hasn't seen anything yet and people ought to run for cover.

In essence, Berg said that it doesn't appear as though the dairy industry will ever go back to whatever "normal" was; but at the same time, more and more change within the industry is increasing fear of things that won't occur.

He noted that within the past three years the vocabularly of people has changed dramatically, reflecting the technological changes and uses. He said to expect the vocabularly to continue to change.

He also said that a year ago, it was the practice for Land O' Lakes and the dairy industry to work off of 5-year plans.

He said it has since been discovered that, not only is nobody in the dairy business using a 5-year plan, but Land O' Lakes and others are now using a "rolling 12-month plan" for long range planning.

He described the industry as "hypercompetitive," and said it is expected to continue, being driven by a series of related factors.

He said industry consolidation, global competition, conversion to new technology, and consumers demanding increased value in products, are driving the system.

"There is decreased room for ineffeciencies and no substitute for growth and performance," he said.

Berg's description of his outlook for the industry was continued consolidation. He talked about several specific mergers and products alignments that were thought to be stabilizing actions that have continued to change to be more consolidated and specific.

He said the industry competitiveness and consolidation has reached the point that there is only room for a number one and number two player in an industry, with no market allowance for a number three.

He said that global economics is forcing new alliances and consolidations.

He said that as United States food companies saturate the United States' market place they have to seek markets in other nations in order to grow.

At the same time, he said competition is growing for the United States' marketplace, as well-supported foreign food industry businesses doing well in their markets have been investing heavily into the United States' market.

He said that while he was on a recent trip to New Zealand he was humbled in that he had been proud of Land O' Lakes processing of 5 million pounds of milk per day at a plant, until he stood in the lobby of a plant in New Zealand that processes 20 million pounds of milk per day.

"They (New Zealand) see the planet as their market. I came away trying to comfort myself that New Zealand was small and far away," he said.

Communications technology changes are changing the way people around the globe foresee coming common practices. Although the future isn't clear, Berg said there is a vision that someday people will be able to see just about everything they need and want to see on television — whether it is carried by cable, telephone fiber optics, or something else.

Agricultural businesses continue to spend great amounts to secure control over new technologies. He cited Monsanto's purchase of Roundup Ready genetics for $1 billion.

He said his personal roots are in the Midwest with 50- to 60-cow milking herds.

Now, according to Berg, the average new facility built there have capacities for 600 cows, and a lot are being built to hold and milk 1,000 cows.

He said that in California there are no facilities being constructed for fewer than 1,000 cows, and the growth area is in facilities for 4,000 cows or more.

Not only is that a change in size of facilities, but the real change is in the people behind production. Berg said they are different people with different expectations and a different sense of business.

"When you and I grew up the industry was production driven, now it is market driven," Berg said.

According to Berg, assumptions of the past have changed.

"No economist predicted $5 butter," he said, adding that consumption isn't going down because of the higher price, though that has been the past assumption.

Further he said that economists didn't predict $1.80 cheese (had been $1.20 or less not too long ago), and at the higher price "... we can't keep up with demand."

He noted that September had a record milk price to producers, and that only stood until the record milk price set in October.

At the same time, no one predicted $1.30 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn.

"While we talk about $5 butter with a smile, we talk about $1.30 corn with concern," he said.

But he said the bottom line of business that has been shown by Walmart and others is, "Get it right: The right place, at the right time, at the right cost."

He said he recently heard of a Midwestern dairyman interested in investing $5 million in a facility to milk 2,500 cows, and he would do it if he could get assurances for a 20-year market for the milk produced.

According to Berg's outlook, the dairy industry can expect such long-term contracts — "not for 30 days, but for 10 years."

He also said that people are looking at a different food chain from the one known so well.

To see the future, he said it is necessary to start with the consumer and then look back through the system.

He said that it appears as though markets are going to continue to drive the system by consolidating consumers (Walmart is the fifth leading food distributor in the United States, and 97 percent of the population enters Walmart during the months of November and December), and that those markets are going to seek long-term commitments from suppliers at set costs, and on down the line.

In the meantime, he said the links in the food chain are going to be reduced and there are to be fewer middlemen involved.

He predicted that the production phase of the dairy industry is to become even more closely linked to the marketing phase, because the "engine is pulling the cars."

Berg's comments suggested that the responsibility of marketers is to do more than grow fat on the temporary losses experienced by producers competing at losses.

"It is imperative that we can communicate to producers about the future so their investments can match."

He said total alignment of production to markets seems likely.

He said it appears that a number of competitive jobs are going to be eliminated, such as agronomists, feed dealers, seed dealers, etc.

This is so, he said, because of those integration alignments.

Berg said that when Monsanto began using commercial fast delivery trucks to deliver its bovine somatotropin products to the farm it was new and some people didn't believe it would be accepted.

Not only is it accepted, but it is being increasingly copied.

While Berg presented more statistics that bolster the image of the domestic dairy industry as being driven by consolidated consumerism forcing consolidated production, he said there are several critical issues that are key to the successful integration of the modern and future dairy industry.

He said effective communications from the marketing to the production sectors are essential; a systemic integration is necessary; respect for diversity in market demand is necessary (targeted products for targeted consumers); adequate capitalization in order to take advantage of new technology and growth is necessary; and perhaps most importantly is the industry's acknowledgement and respect given to its heritage, purpose and values.

"I would start with that," he said. "If you lose your purpose, values and heritage, then you are adrift."

Dairy Compact

While not dissenting with Berg's outlook, Becker discussed the successes of the Northeast Dairy Compact and the possibility of continued or new governmental price controls for producers.

Becker's education and employment has been as an agricultural economist. He has experience in Europe and Russia as a consultant

Dairy Practices Council Works For Mutual Benefit

The Dairy Practices Council is a collection of representatives from three different sectors of the dairy industry — regulatory, educational, and production/processing. Here, a representative of the dairy industry of Washington state talks about proactive work the industry did there to curtail environmental concerns with the industry.

and lecturer, and served as deputy commissioner to the Vermont Department of Agriculture, Food and Markets, prior being named to head the Northeast Dairy Compact.

He discussed the Compact, the loss of small dairy farms that characterize Northeast production, the positive effect the Compact has had upon New York dairy producers (they are in an adjoining non-member state and they provide about a quarter of the milk in the Compact), and the fact that while dairy production may have increased within the Compact, it hasn't been shown to necessarily be a consequence of the effects of setting a marginally profitable producer price for milk.

He said that while consumer prices and producer prices were different when it first started up, the current consumer prices are very close to those outside of the Compact region. He said the prices are about a cent different on drinking milk.

"The Compact isn't gouging consumers, but is providing stability of consumer prices, and prices for producers."

That lack of price stability was a growing concern and the Northeast Dairy Compact was seen as a way to allow Northeast dairy producers to transition to market-driven production without governmental support.

During Farm Bill negotiations that allowed for the temporary establishment of a Northeast Dairy Compact, it was widely predicted that continued instability of dairy price, especially dips into the sub-production level prices, would only add to the demise of the open spaces and rural economic support that the small family farms provide in the Northeast.

Arguments for the Compact have also been offered that without the small family farms, the tourist industry would falter and farmland preservation efforts diminish.

Becker said that while the general public wants to retain its family farms and open spaces, and seems willing to support them in that concept, they were not willing to continue to support a broadly applied, tax-based federal commodity support program.

The regional approach encompassed in the Compact is seen as a way to eliminate the federalism (and distrust of potential system corruption at a national level) of farm support, while maintaining the benefits of a local family farm sector.

The Northeast Dairy Compact was to have been ended in April 1999, and the short-lived nature of the Compact has been given as a major reason to oppose its expansion (by the time different state legislatures could discuss the merits of joining, it would be too late to be of benefit to join).

That is still seen as the case by many, although Becker said that a recent 6-month extension granted the Compact by the United States Legislature and President Clinton leaves open the life of the Compact.

He noted that a pre-November election federal omnibus spending bill included authorization for the continuation of the Northeast Dairy Compact past its April cutoff.

Becker cited the fact that several non-contiguous states and low dairy production states have passed legislation authorizing joining the Compact.

However, New York State would have to authorize and join, and Pennsylvania would have to authorize and join, in order for most of the states with enabling laws to participate.

Some have expressed the opinion that members of those states' legislatures approved Compact-enabling legislation knowing full well it would not come to pass in their states, but that, as harmless legislation, it would serve to placate a portion of their political constituencies.

The reasons given for the extension of the Compact is the delay in the implementation of a new federal milk marketing order system.

There are a couple of proposals for a new system still being weighed and debated, although a new system was to go in effect in April.

Becker said that to handily dispense with the Compact won't necessarily work, because, "As a matter of public policy, there are a number of groups that support the Compact."

He said the other groups aren't necessarily agricultural in nature or commitment.

There are pressures from those concerned with the loss of open spaces and protection of watersheds who see the support offered by the Compact as a means for securing their real desires.

For example, he cited the concerns expressed in New York state about its Delaware County, which comprises a significant and critical area in the watershed that supplies drinking water to the city of New York.

(For years, a series of interconnecting reservoirs within the Delaware River watershed have provided fresh clean water to New York City.)

There are a number of small family dairy farms in the area that sell milk into the Compact and, because of it are considered to be economically feasible.

Becker said that while pollution of the watershed is largely blamed upon the farms, it has been recognized that any other land uses, especially residential, would increase the pollution of the waters by at least six times.

In other words, while farms there may be linked to nutrients in water, the impact is not as great as would occur would the farms be replaced by any other use for the land.

(Furthermore, it could be assumed that for New York City to otherwise secure an adequate protection of the watershed upon which it depends, it would have to purchase the entire acreage and put it out of service in generating taxes.)

Becker said the Compact does stabilize dairy prices and dairy farms, and while it doesn't prevent the on-farm price from declining, it does lessen the decline.

As far as overproduction within the Compact being encouraged because of the artificially higher producer price, some states, such as Massachusettes are proposing caps on production, according to Becker.

He said that the idea is that the Compact price would be paid on a certain poundage coming from the farm, while the rest of the milk produced would not receive that price.

(The proposed concept is not new to the dairy industry.)

Becker said that as government gets out of regulating farm commodity pricing, and moves into environmental controls, there are more questions as to how to pay for the environmental controls.

"If you want farms to farm in a region, and you're unwilling to use tax-based farm supports," people will have to seek some alternative means for supporting local or regional farms, as a means for achieving environmental goals, he said.

Awards, Recognitions

The DPC meeting also recognized achievements of some of its members.

The group annually recognizes those who have helped secure supporting or sustaining memberships into the DPC. Those who are recognized receive a Silver Eagle award — a silver dollar.

There are 124 sustaining memberships in DPC.

Receiving awards were Robert Turner, president of the DPC, for sustaining member PLADOT Mini Dairy Processing Systems, and the DPC Office, which was responsible for bringing in sustaining member Northeast Dairy Processors Association.

Also receiving Silver Eagles were Donald George, Terry Musson, Chris Newcomer, Gaylord Smith, Stan Weeks, Daniel Scruton, Patrick Boyle, and Lee Southwick.

New states regulatory and extension agencies for the year include the California Department of Food and Agriculture; California Cooperative Extension, University of California-Davis; New Mexico Department of Agriculture; Tennessee Department of Agriculture; the Texas Department of Health; and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Industria Lechera de Puerto Rico. At the federal level, the Food and Drug Administration Southwest Region Milk Program is also a participant.

In other recognition, Sid Barnard, retired from Penn State Extension as a dairy quality specialist (his work in helping Pennsylvania companies and the dairy industry achieve higher taste quality controls and longer shelf life are widely known and respected, even though the program was allowed to disappear); and Steve Spencer, also a dairy specialist very active with DPC who worked on dairy plant equipment procedures for DPC.

Though Spencer was unable to attend, the two men received honorary life memberships and plaques commemorating the achievements.

For those interested in more information about the DPC, call Terry Musson, executive vice president at (732) 264-2643.

It was announced that the DPC main office has been moved from its Vermont location to Keyport, New Jersey.

Hunters Sharing Harvest Program Helps Hungry

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Quite a few Pennsylvania residents are looking forward to deer hunting season – but not for the reasons one might expect.

The people do not plan to join in the hunt, but they look forward to sharing some of the bounty of deer season.

These individuals, in the past, have eaten venison donated through the "Hunters Sharing the Harvest" and look forward to again sharing the meat harvested by generous hunters.

The "Hunters Sharing the Harvest" (HSH) program, which channels donated venison to local food banks and soup kitchens, has been a hit with deer hunters and hungry Pennsylvanians alike.

Last year, more than 200,000 Pennsylvanians enjoyed meals from venison donated by local hunters

Now entering the eighth year of the project, hunters across the state are expected to donate upwards of 80,000 pounds of venison

HSH Coordinator Ken Brandt said, "With 7 million pounds of venison harvested in the state each year, the goal is within reach."

Licensing Agents, Processors Help

In an all-out effort to boost donations, license issuing agents have been invited to help HSH by making hunters aware of the program and to encourage them to give a portion of deer meat to help feed their hungry neighbors

Participating agents will display posters and hand out fliers which give hunters information about getting their venison to a food bank in their area Licensing agents will also be asked to get local conservation groups and hunting clubs involved in giving extra deer meat to the needy.

Pennsylvania meat processors and butchers have been contacted and will again be asked to participate in the voluntary sharing program. They play an important part in the donation project, as they butcher carcasses under sanitary conditions and provide cold storage until the meat is moved to the food bank.

Coordinators Needed

Two area coordinators have volunteered to organize hunters' donations with food banks and soup kitchens in western Pennsylvania.

Dr. Bill Choby, who participated in HSH in past years, said, "In an area like ours where unemployment is high, the venison program really makes a difference for people living on the edge. They appreciate it."

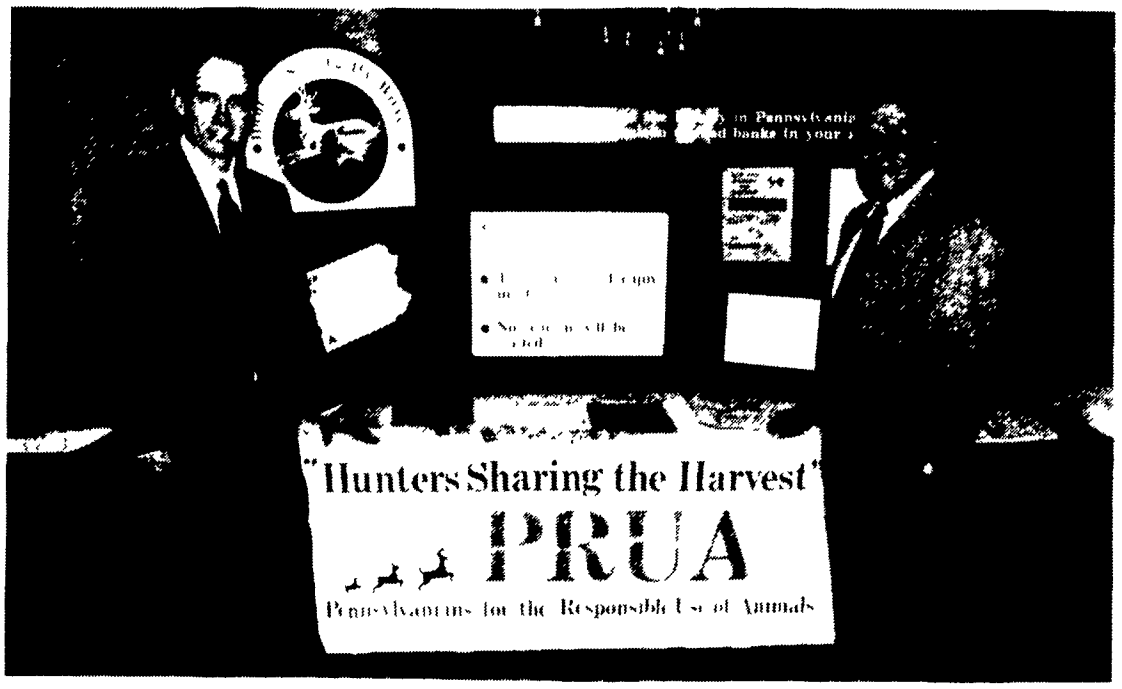
Dr. Choby can be contacted at 1905 Bates Drive, Johnstown, PA 15905 (Cambria County) Telephone: 814-255-7779

Steve Loder will be the area coordinator for Allegheny County. He can be contacted at P.O. Box 1615, Cranberry Township, PA 16066. His telephone number is 724-779-8320.

To enhance everyone's enjoyment of venison, Steve and his wife Gail have written a cookbook Quality Venison: Homemade Recipes & Homespun Deer Tales. Though the Loders have over 150 recipes for preparing venison, a portion of their deer meat goes to the hunters' sharing project. Loders can be contacted directly to obtain copies of the cookbook or for information about HSH.

More area coordinators are needed, particularly in northern, central and eastern areas of the state.

Volunteer coordinators will be asked to contact their local meat processors, talk to food banks about receiving and distributing the venison, and to encourage area hunting clubs to participate in the "Hunters Sharing the Harvest."



The Hunters Sharing the Harvest program is in its eighth years as an organization designed to funnel venison donations from successful hunters of Pennsylvania whitetail into food kitchens across the state. The program is sponsored by Pennsylvanians for the Responsible Use of Animals, an advocacy group that promotes the humane and unwasteful use of animals. The program also receives support from several state agencies, including the Department of Agriculture and the state Game Commission. From the left, state Secretary of Agriculture Samuel E. Hayes Jr. stands with Kenneth Brandt, HSH coordinator, at the organization's booth in the state Capitol.

Interested persons – individuals, clubs or informal groups – can contact coordinator Ken Brandt, 3317 Turnpike Road, Elizabethtown, PA 17022. Telephone: 717-367-5223. FAX: 717-367-4316. Ken can also be reached by e-mail: deershring@aol.com.

Sponsors

The innovative HSH venison sharing project was initiated in 1991 by Pennsylvanians for the Responsible Use of Animals (PRUA). The program operates in cooperation with the Pa. Game Commission and the Pa. Department of Agriculture along with the Pa. Deer Association, Pa. Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs and the Pennsylvania chapters of the Safari Clubs International.

During its first year, the success of HSH attracted the attention of United States Tobacco Company, which has supported the program since that time.

PRUA is a coalition of Pennsylvania associations and individuals representing agriculture, biomedicine, entertainment, sports, and hunting groups. The umbrella organization encourages humane treatment of animals used for food, clothing and biomedical research, sport and entertainment.

At the same time, PRUA strongly supports the right to use animals in a responsible way.

Gettysburg Hunt On Hold

Due to a dispute now in the courts, the National Park Service has temporarily shelved this year's project to continue thinning the burgeoning deer population on 8,000 acres of national park land at Gettysburg.

When the herd reduction program resumes, "Hunters Sharing the Harvest" will continue its role in helping Park Service with distribution of venison.

Plans are ready to solicit funds as soon as the issue is resolved in the courts. Cash contributions will enable HSH and the Park Service to have the venison processed and donated to food banks and soup kitchens.

A Park Service spokesman said, "One of the most important aspects of the reduction of deer on parkland is the ability to utilize the meat."

Penn State Researchers Look To Make Livestock Better Travelers

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co) – Want to make sure that your livestock weather a trip with less wight loss? Make sure they have plenty of "Gatorade," according to researchers in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Lowell Wilson, professor of animal science, teamed with project assistant Darron Smith to combat the significant weight loss that occurs in calves, pigs and lambs when they are transported from farm to livestock auction to the farm of the new owners.

"All animals will lose weight when transported–that's known as shrinkage, " Smith said. "Weight loss can approach 10 percent in transported animals, due to numerous environmental and physiological factors We want to minimize this shrinkage, which results from the stress of being handled and transported."

Smith found that providing livestock with electrolyte-restoring liquids (similar to sports drinks for humans) before and during transportation can reduce shrinkage

"Offering these liquids apparently increases the amount of fluid the animals consume while they're waiting for sale at the auction, or even before they're loaded on the truck at their original farm," Smith said. "This may be because the animal has a nutritional requirement for some of the elements contained in the electrolyte mixture, or it may be because the mixture is flavored. But increased liquid consumption tends to cut down on stress and wight loss."

For the experiment, scientists transported the animals 50 miles in the morning, kept them for four hours in unfamiliar pens, then transported them another 50 miles. All animals were weighed immediately before and after their trips, and again 24 and 48 hours later. Other data were collected, including feed and liquid consumed, body temperature, heart rate and respiration.

Wilson and Smith also videotaped the animals during transport, tracking such behaviors as loss of balance, aggression and position changes. Researchers also kept track of eating, drinking and other behavior during the four-hour holding period.

The animals were divided into three groups: one group wasn't transported at all, a second was transported with access to water and a third was transported with access to a standard electrolyte-enhanced liquid drink. While the water-fed animals spent more time lying or standing in the pen, the electrolyte-fed animals showed increased frequency of eating and drinking. And, while all animals lost weight during transport, electrolyte-fed animals tended to lose less weight than water-fed animals.

"We thing that an increase in liquids and electrolyte consumption may promote feed consumption during stressful events like handling and transporting to auctions," Wilson said.

"Electrolyte-fed animals didn't demonstrate the fasting and binge-eating seen in water-fed animals, so they didn't have the large weight losses and subsequent large feed intakes that water-fed animals did. This results in animals that maintain a more constant weight through the transportation process."

The monogastric animals (pigs) showed the greatest benefit from the electrolytes, losing even less weight than the ruminants (lambs and calves) after transportation. Wilson says the benefits were especially evident in hot weather.

Pitts Receives Friend Of Farm Bureau Award

WASHINGTON, D C. — U.S. Congressman Joseph R. Pitts recently received the "Friend of Farm Bureau" Award, presented by the American Farm Bureau to Members of Congress who have been nominated by their state Farm Bureau and approved to the American Farm Bureau Federation Board of Directors for their dedication to policies which benefit regional farmers.

Congressman Pitts was presented the award at the farm of Duane and Marilyn Hershey, Cochranville.

As a representative of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and the American Farm Bureau Federation, Duane Hershey presented the award to Congressman Pitts. Hershey said, "Farm Bureau recognizes those members of Congress who have demonstrated a high level of support for key issues of importance to Farm Bureau. Joe Pitts has proven to be a great asset to Pennsylvania agriculture through his dedicated service in Congress."

Hershey continued, "Congressman Pitts' support for key Farm Bureau issues includes fiscal responsibility through a balanced budget along with cuts in the capital gains tax, 100 percent health insurance deductions for the self employed, higher exemptions from estate taxes, and tax deferred savings accounts for farmers — FARRM Accounts."

In receipt of the "Friend of Farm Bureau" Award, Congressman Pitts said, "In the 16th Congressional District of Pennsylvania, we have some of the most coveted farmland in the country. I am dedicated to continued service of the hard-working farmers, who, for generations, have made this region prosperous. I am honored to receive this award and pledge to continue my work on behalf of our farmers."

After lunch, the dairy nutrition program will be held from 12:45 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. Tim Lehman, Agway nutritionist, will talk about maximizing butterfat, rumen health, and milk production. Carl and Dan Brandt, who have the highest butterfat herd in Lebanon County, will also be sharing.

For more information and reservations, call Tom Krall (717) 274-5891 or Zimmerman Farm Service (717) 933-4114 or Tulpehocken High School (717) 933-4114.

Tulpehocken Adult Young Farmers and Miller Pro is hosting the even held at Zimmerman Farm Service. Cedar Crest Young Farmers is hosting the event at the Krall Farm. All local farmers are invited to attend.

USDA NRSC, EPA To Hold Meeting

Janet Oertly, USDA NRCS state conservationist (top agency representative in Pennsylvania), headquartered in Harrisburg, said the proposal is not for new regulations.

"The strategy does not contain new regulations, and the strategy itself is not a rule," she stated in a news release.

"The strategy simply recognizes and provides for how the voluntary and regulatory aspects of our respective agencies were set up to operate."

The strategy is an outline of how the two organizations are to coordinate efforts to work cooperatively with their existing authorities to fulfill goals within the Clinton Administration's Clean Water Action Plan.

According to a news release, "The strategy establishes a national expectation that all animal feeding operations develop and implement comprehensive nutrient management plans by the year 2008.

"These plans include manure handling and storage, application of manure to the land, record keepign, feed management, integration with other conservation measures, and other manure utilization options."

Pennsylvania led the nation when the agriculture sector worked proactively with national and regional environmental organization representatives to develop a mutually acceptable Nutrient Management Act.

In the meantime, the EPA issued its proposal for national regulations and permitting of "concentrated animal feeding operations" (CAFOs), which challenged the structure of Pennsylvania's existing Nutrient Management Act regulations.

A proposal for modifications of Pennsylvania's program to comply with the EPA CAFO regulations is still being considered.

The Pennsylvania program recognizes high density livestock operations by setting a threshhold of the ratio of livestock weight to land available to raise plants that can use livestock generated manure nutrients.

Pennsylvania's program also deals with the raising of livestock, not merely the feeding of them. (Horse boarding operations and dog kennels, for example, are not considered under Pennsylvania's nutrient management regulations.)

The EPA program has slightly different considerations for what constitutes a threat to the nation's waterways, and has authority to require certain farms to have permits under the National Pollution Discharge Elimination System (NPDES).

Pennsylvania's Department of Environmental Protection has been working to create new types of NPDES permits that can be used with the Nutrient Management Act to comply with EPA regulations.

One of the problems with complying with the federal CAFO rules is with the NPDES permits. This is because, under Pennsylvania's system, all nutrient management plans are approved through the authority and expertise of the State Conservation Commission and conservation districts, and are not subject to hearings or comment by the general public.

The possibility of public hearings being associated with the issuances of NPDES permits is an matter of concern for agriculturalists, mainly because it could provide an unecessary opportunity for those opposed to animal agriculture to legally harass farmers.

Following the CAFO proposal, the USDA/EPA Unified Joint Strategy for Animal Feeding Operations (AFOs) was released, with the explanation that it not a proposal for new regulations, but for a program for using the authorities granted under existing laws and regulations in order to ensure that livestock operations are not polluting waterways with nutrients from animal manure.

According to the AFO news release, "In Pennsylvania, (the expectations of the unified strategy) coordinates well with the state's Nutrient Management Act (Act 6), which establishes minimum criteria for nutrient management plans.

"Act 6 requires concentrated animal operations to develop and implement nutrient management plans. Five to 10 percent of Pennsylvania's farms fall into that category," according to the news release. "The other 90 percent are encouraged to develop and implement nutrient management plans on a voluntary basis."

Chester Extension Banquet Explores County's Agricultural History

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — At The Stone Barn near Kennett Square, about 133 Chester County Extension Association family and friends learned some things about the agriculture history of their county.

Thursday evening at the extension's annual meeting, farmers and other industry educators and leaders learned that some things have changed in the "five centuries" that have passed in the development of a thriving ag economy in southeastern Pennsylvania.

And they learned that some things really hadn't changed much at all.

In a brief and colorful history of the county as recounted by Colin A. Hanna, chairman of the Chester County Commissioners, the early days of the pioneering county were marked by commerce and controversy.

Right where the banquet took place, the early settlers once called the "back country," said Hanna. Hanna said early colonists were known for few attributes.

"There was lawlessness, they were considered renegades or adventurers," he said.

Hanna referred to a carefully researched and colorfully recorded display of the progress of the county from the 1600s into the next century. The display at the banquet recounted the times from the first settlers of the land owned by William Penn, after the land was obtained from the Lenape tribes in 1682-1683.

Back then, Chester County included a lot of land mass, taking in areas now held by Delaware, Philadelphia, and Berks counties. Delaware County was the first one separated from Chester, in 1729.

Into the mid-1700s, farming was largely subsistence farming. The farmer literally lived off the land and didn't sell livestock or crops. The farms were located near rivers for easy access to transportation and production borrowed heavily from the native Americans — maze, sweet potatoes, pumpkins, gourds, watermelon, and beans.

According to the county commissioner, the people and the land "were pretty rough — and pretty much exhibited pioneer-like qualities," he noted. Eventually, the areas west of Philadelphia, filling with immigrants, included a substantial amount of English, Irish, and Welsh. They headed west — using the cart paths that eventually became known as routes 1, 3, and 30. The Swiss and German settlers navigated northward using the rivers.

When the families purchased the land from Penn, they first obtained a "warrant," which required that surveying be completed.

Then, a land patent, or "deed," was issued. The word "deed" means to pass on the land patent to subsequent purchasers.

Sometimes it took quite a while to finally obtained ownership of land — as many as 75 years.

"If you think the county government moves slowly, look how far we've come," said Hanna.

In the years 1700-1732, it cost about 10 pounds (the currency at the time) for 100 acres of land. From 1732-1762, the rate increased 50 percent, to 15 pounds per 100-acre tract. The farms then were known as "plantations" and averaged about 150 acres in size.

Power equipment to create arable land was simply nonexistent. Clearing the land took time, a lot of time — about an acre a year. There was only one horse for about every 6-7 families. To rid the area of trees, the trunks were girdled, the bark was cut, the lumber was harvested, and the tree eventually died and was cut down. Stumps remained. Farmers plowed in between stumps, where they could. It took 10-20 years for the stumps to rot and decay enough to be uprooted and tillable land was available.

But some things never change.

Hanna noted that in 1764, a survey went out calling for "tax assessment," that included separate categories for cows and horses. Those days, the assessment wasn't on real estate alone, but on livestock. The survey concluded there were 2,502 farms, 6,716 horses, 8,672 cattle, and 9,489 sheep.

And there were the fads.

In 1800, a series of agricultural "fads" included one where, for 20 years, Merino sheep were the hit of the land, sweeping the county. In the 1820s, the big attraction was raising all sorts of commercial swine, including existing breeds and the development of crossbreds. A staple of the human diet was salt pork.

Then, in 1824, the Pennsylvania Agriculture Society of Chester County was formed, and the first ag expo — an ancestor to what is known now as Ag Progress Days in Rockspring — was featured in Paoli. The expo included new ways for farmers to work with seed, uses of corn, millet, how to grow different vegetables, and other items.

In the 1840s, Pennsylvania was tied with New York as the top wheat producing state.

Dairy farming came into being in the 1840s-1860s, with the influx of Herefords, Ayrshires, Galloways, and Holsteins.

Again — some things never change.

In an article which appeared in the newspaper of the time, the American Republican, farmers were reminded of the "good times" when wheat prices stood at $2 a bushel. An article read: "When the farmer prospers, every other branch of business prospers, also."

Through the 1880s, the development of the railroads after the Civil War provided fresh eggs, milk, cheese, and other products to nearby Philadelphia. At that time, the Patrons of Husbandry group, which later evolved into what we know as the Granges, was established.

Those achieving 10-year milestones included Pat Taws and Judy Fromm, staff assistants at the extension office. Also, Sarah Wallace, adviser to the EFNEP program, was recognized. In photo, from left, Trudy Dougherty, county extension director; Fred Davis, regional director, who presented the awards; Taws; and Fromm.

Charles Wollaston, Maple Lawn Farm, right, was honored for more than 50 years of service to Extension. In addition, new board members of the association, serving a three-year term, included Jane Pepple, Oxford, owner and operator of Pep-L-Lea Holsteins, left. Not pictured: Eric Miler, Chadds Ford, president of Chadds Ford Winery and Sara L. Munoz, part and community coordinator/home and school visitor for southeast Delco School District.

In 1880, another assessment was completed in Chester County, which showed there were 6,616 farms and 264 grist mills. In 1883, the first Chester County commissioners were appointed. In 1896, the first rural free deliveries began.

cities began to emerge at the turn of the century. Not only that, but in 1908, President Theodore Roosevelt appointed the first Country Life Commission to study two things: farm wives and challenges, and "keeping the children on the farm," said Hanna.

In 1909, another survey showed 49,000 acres of corn, 23,000 acres of oats, 10,000 acres of potatoes, with a total population of 109,000 people. In December 1912, the Chester County Farm Bureau was formed. In 1914, Congress established the cooperative extension system, now in place.

In 1926, there were 350 members of the Mushroom Growers Association of Pennsylvania. Today, national mushroom consumption per person is four pounds per person per year. Fresh mushrooms make up 53 percent of total production, the rest is processed.

Pennsylvania's share in national mushroom production is 44 percent. Chester County is capitol of mushroom production in the state, noted Hanna.

The 1970s saw a technological boom with the introduction of artificial insemination. In the 1990s, farmers are facing marketing challenges and pressures of environmental controls.

There has been more development of the land in the last 25 years than in the previous 300 years.

In 1975, there were 1,800 farms in the county. In the 1990s, that number has dropped to 1,200 farms. But agriculture production is number two to Lancaster County in the state.

In 1975, half the land was devoted to agricultural production. Now it is less than 40 percent.

Since reassessment in the county, more farmers, including those from Lancaster and other nearby counties, are seeing how viable and in some cases less expensive it is to farm Chester County land.

At the banquet, several extension employees were honored for years of service.

Special recognition was given to Trudy Dougherty, county extension director, for 25 years with cooperative extension.

Composting: Least-Cost Method For Poultry Disposal

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Every year poultry producers have to deal with a big pile of problems — about 1.2 billion pounds of dead chickens and turkeys.

What are some of the options for producers who are not only battling competition from other meat sources, but environmental and public nuisance-type regulations over how to properly dispose of dead poultry?

According to one Penn State poultry science educator, there are a host of viable solutions to the problems of poultry mortality. What's the least-cost option? Compost them, noted Dr. Paul H. Patterson, Penn State poultry science instructor.

Patterson spoke Monday to about 30 producers and agri-industry representatives at the Penn State-sponsored Poultry Health and Management Seminar at Kreider's Restaurant in Manheim.

The Penn State researcher pointed to research by several universities into the options and costs of disposing of dead poultry.

"The bottom line," said Patterson, is that simple composting methods proved to be "the least cost of all of (the options) on a hundredweight basis. That's the way to go if you're looking at total cost of disposal."

Patterson introduced several methods of disposal in addition to composting. They include burial, incineration, and rendering and reclaiming of nutrients. But "composting is an existing technology that's working very well," he said. "When it's done right, it can be great. When it's not done right, it can be a real challenge, too."

Several issues are central to dealing with chicken mortality. Because the areas of disposal are close to public housing, the public will be looking ever more closely at how dealing with mortality, including composting, is handled.

Burial may be a "time-honored tradition," noted the poultry educator. While this still works, "open and shallow pits are totally unacceptable," he said.

Patterson recently returned from a fact-finding trip to the Southeast. He noted that in Arkansas, which has a high water table, pits are outlawed because of the public's concern about pathogens from poultry sources in groundwater supplies. Pits "can be an environmental and disease disaster," he said.

Incineration can be an excellent way to handle dead poultry. Disease and insect challenges are eradicated. The downside of incineration, Patterson noted, was start-up costs and cost of fuel. Also, the odors caused by burning poultry can be a challenge. And the units need to be replaced every 5-7 years. Incineration costs can run from 3-4 cents per pound of product (for the propane gas fuel).

Composting, at a cost of about $3.50 per hundredweight, has a "lot of future in Pennsylvania and the whole poultry industry," Patterson said.

There are different recipes and ratios, but Patterson pointed to the following: a ratio of 1 (mortalities) to 2 (used litter) to 0.1 (straw) to water (0.25). The carbon-nitrogen ratio needs to be about 23 carbon to 1 of nitrogen (a range of 15:1 to 35:1). Moisture should be 55 percent (within a range of 40-60 percent). If the compost system is too dry, bird carcasses mummify and won't break down.

Moisture and air supply (composting is an aerobic process) are critical issues, noted Patterson.

To start, producers need to have a solid base, concrete pad (preferred) or wood. The base should be followed by a double layer of manure, followed by the dead poultry, followed by manure, followed by straw. Subsequent layers would repeat the process — dead poultry, then manure, then straw.

Water should be added (misting the feathers) with each layer of birds. Water is dependent on the moisture level of the manure, the humidity in the air, and other factors. It's important, Patterson noted, to place the water on the inner layers only — if water pools at the base, then too much was applied.

The key is to allow the bacteria and fungi present in the birds and manure to work to break down the organic material. In the aerobic process, heat is generated. The heat kills the pathogens, weed seeds, and fly larvae. Turning the product also restarts the heating and composting cycle, allows aeration, and continues the composting process.

Almost any source of carbon will work, including straw, sawdust, or wood shavings. Shavings have about a 400: or 500:1 carbon ratio.

Patterson pointed out some information about a medium-sized composting operation in Alabama that used several primary bins and a storage area. The composter required a $3,000-$5,000 investment, but included a concrete pad. A front-end loader or skid-steer loader is used to deliver the product to the composter.

A small layer flock in Lancaster County uses straw and hen manure. As a carbon source, the straw works well for them, noted Patterson.

This "minicomposter" doesn't require a skid loader and doesn't handle a large amount of birds. The minicomposter uses five pallets, one on each side, with a pallet on the bottom. The pallets ares hinge connected (though producers could use pins or wires). It works well.

Patterson noted some research on other methods of mortality disposal, which included rendering and reclaiming nutrients. Refrigeration units are used to store the dead birds until central pickup.

Also, he reviewed research into using acid or base concentrations to render birds. In one case, feed-grade phosphoric acid was used, though propionic and sulfuric

Hereford Association Announces Top Recording Herds

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Registrations are essential to the success of the purebred cattle herd and are key to the survival of breed associations.

Samuel Hunter, Smithsburg, led the way in number of Hereford cattle from Maryland registered at the American Hereford Association during the 1997-1998 fiscal year. The operation registered 56 head from Sept. 1, 1997 to Aug. 31, 1998.

Churchview Farm, Millersville, ranked second and registered 52 head. Tamsey Farm, Easton ranked third with 41 registrations.

Other herds that qualified for a top-10 registration rank were Grandview Farm, Harwood; Gregory Horner, Hampstead; Waterview Farms, Bozman; Archibald-Armadale Association, Frederick; Mullinix Brothers, Woodbine; Ridge Sunset Acres Farm, Westminster; and A.W. Plainfield Farm, Newburg.

When 1 ton of corn meal costs $100/ton, a 0 5 ton per acre Corn Meal Energy Equivalent difference equates to $50/acre or $125/unit of seed corn (32,000 plants/acre)

Animal requirements were estimated using MILK95 model published by University of Wisconsin (J. Prod Ag 6:231-235). Fiber inputs to MILK95 were adjusted by an enzyme-based in vitro digestibility procedure to account for the fact that not all fiber is degraded at same rate or extent by rumen bacteria.

Caution should be used when making hybrid decisions based on single/limited plot comparisons Be sure hybrid comparisons are of "similar" maturity for that area of adaptation Pioneer research suggests a minimum of 20 side-by-side comparisons for valid yield and nutritional comparisons ment." So far, the Ostaszewski family has been very receptive.

Pennsylvania Simmental Genetics Make New Home In Poland

"The family wants to be on the forefront of raising red beef cattle in Poland," she said.

However, the challenges of exporting beef genetics to the Ostaszewski family proved formidable.

Bill Flagg first became involved with the project in the summer of 1997, when a friend of his met Joe Czudak, who went to the same church in Philadelphia as Matthew Ostaszewski. Matthew's family had purchased the farm in Poland and wanted to help restore the farm to productive use.

Matthew's plan was simple: use western genetics to literally "beef up" the Polish herd, composed mostly of cows of mixed and indistinctive genetics, used primarily for milk production.

Embryo calves from this herd would become the foundation herd for the family.

Karen noted that the family believes demand for beef from this herd would be "great." The shipment was a full year in the making. "There were times when we almost gave up," Karen said. But they persisted.

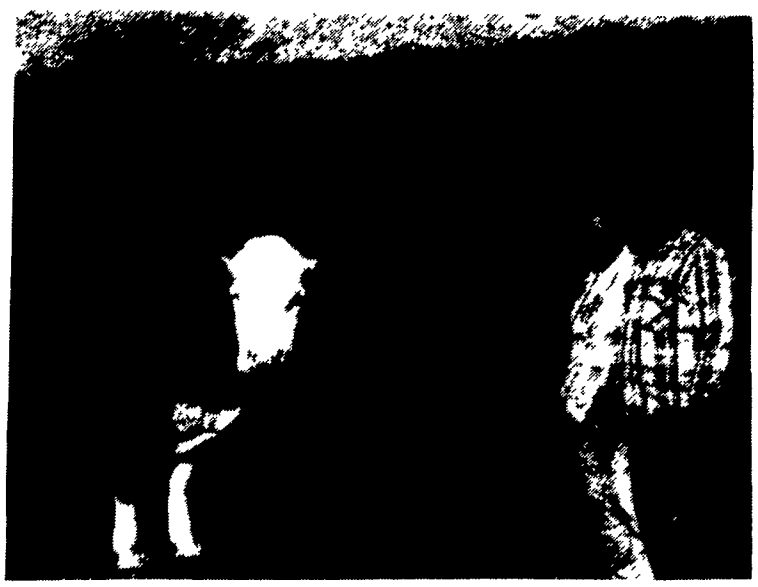
First, all health requirements had to be met. People who could thaw the genetics from liquid nitrogen freezing had to be available in Poland. Health requirements established by the Polish Ministry of Agriculture had to be satisfied. Shipping arrangements had to be made to accommodate the tank of frozen nitrogen. Permits had to be secured and import duty paid.

Bill noted that the Ostaszewski's wanted to hand-transport the embryos and semen by plane. Hand-transportation could prove difficult with the headaches of customs and the lack of insurance. However, Bill was able to convince them to allow a commercial freight company to deliver the material to Poland. Through the assistance of Mower and Sam Hayes, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, who visited Poland, the Flaggs were successful in transporting the material.

There were 20 embryos in three separate lots. They were:

• Lot 1: Sire: Yust-Pol Homesteader. Dam: PMF Athena.

• Lot 2: Sire: Switz Pol Red M785. Dam: PMF Cameo.



The bulk of the embryos were from Athena, the Flagg's 19- year-old fullblood cow whose dam was imported from the Fleckveih region of southern Germany in the mid-1970s. According to Karen Flagg, Athena's sons have consistently excelled when placed on test at the Penn State Meat Animal Evaluation Center.

In mid-October, shipments of fullblood Simmental embryos and semen were made to the Ostaszewski family from Warren Point, a fullblood Simmental cow/calf farm operated by the Bill and Karen Flagg family in Elverson.

• Lot 3: Sire: Switz Polled Progress. Dam: PMF Athena.

The semen lot was from a bull, PMF Abraham, son of PMF Athena, according to Bill.

Simmental cattle originated in Switzerland.

The purebred line means that Simmental genetics were crossbred to another breed. However, the Flaggs maintain a 100 percent fullblood line — meaning the genetics have never been mixed with any other breed.

The fullblood Simmentals are a more highly muscled, red in color, and are excellent foragers, noted Bill.

A couple of decades ago, when the Flaggs began their cow/calf operation, they become "sold on fullblood Simmentals because they forage extremely well, they're not extreme in size," said Karen. "But they're full of meat and gain very efficiently." Karen noted the Simmentals produce lots of red meat, are easy to handle, and are quiet, gentle animals.

"We're breeding to create a good product and a really functional female," Karen said.

The last three years, Bill noted, Simmentals have achieved top gain at the Penn State performance tests. Altogether breeders must recognize these factors above any kind of "beauty contests," he said.

Recently a family in Gap purchased eight head of bred animals from the Flaggs to start a small herd.

The Flaggs moved to Elverson from their former farm, Pickering Meadow Farm, in Schuylkill Township near Phoenixville.

They began raising Simmentals in 1979 after responding to an ad for Simmental beef in Lancaster Farming, Bill noted. In 1994, when they moved to Warren Point, they maintained about 50 brood cows and 25 calves. Now they maintain about 40 brood cows and 15 calves on the farm.

Bill and Karen Flagg farm with their two sons, Dean, 14 and Chris, 12. Altogether they care for about 112 acres, all pasture or hay. They maintain about 30 acres for rotationally intensive grazing (25 acres of sacrifice area in the winter) and about 45 acres of hay. The hay includes an alfalfa mixture and the remainder an orchard/timothy/ryegrass mixture.

Bill said that he gets about four cuttings of alfalfa per year and two off the regular grass hay mixture.

On the rotationally grazed lots, the paddocks range from ¾ of an acre to two acres. Most are ¾ to one acre in size. The grazing areas contain a mix or rye and clover and other grasses.

The paddocks are fenced with 12½ gauge aluminum wire, "visible to the cattle and deer," Bill said. The wire is mounted to blue recycled vinyl fence.

The farm name, Warren Point, has been in existence since the Flaggs purchased the farm, at one time owned by the Pew family.

The homestead was built in 1756 and was an "iron plantation." According to Karen, the name "Warren Point" probably originated when a bell mounted on top of the older section of the house was used to warn the people of the iron quarry of approaching indians coming up the valley. So the name "warning point," shortened to "Warren Point," stuck.

Composting: Least-Cost Method

acids work. In Georgia, a layer operation was using sodium or potassium hydroxide as a base to digest feathers off the birds. He also reviewed a place in Texas where birds from a broiler were rendered using a fermentation "slurry." In the end, the product included 37 percent crude protein, 28 percent fat, and the products were recycled back to feed ingredients (to the tune of 5-10 percent of the total diet).

Penn State conducted its own research using sodium hydroxide and enzymes to rid birds of the feathers and to render the carcasses. The product provided little spoilage, it eliminated the bad bacteria, and "pickled essentially pretty good," Patterson said.

In the study, there was evidence of destruction of protein. But the by-product cold be fed to baby chicks and cockerels, noted Patterson.

An ag economist from Alabama researched the economics of the various disposal methods available to producers. He pointed out that it would cost about 3.68 per hundredweight to use disposal pits, $4.88 per hundredweight for large bin disposal, $8.92 per hundredweight for incineration, $4.55 per hundredweight for fermentation, and $11.41 per hundredweight for refrigeration.

Minicomposting was the least expensive, at $3.50 per hundredweight.

Producers must understand "there are some challenges out there," said Patterson. "There are some birds that need to be disposed of.

"These issues are critical and close to proximity situations," he said, "certainly like we have here in Lancaster County. The public is going to be looking at how these are handled."

PEQAP Update

Dr. David Kradel, poultry health consultant and coordinator of the Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program (PEQAP), informed those at the seminar Monday about the recent meeting of the PEQAP Executive Committee.

As of Monday, there were 177 premises enrolled in PEQAP, representing 284 flocks.

The Salmonella Enteritidis (SE) flock positivity rate has remained steady at 8½ to about 9 percent. But with 35 new flocks coming into the program as of October, the SE positive rate has jumped to about 13 percent, which concerns the program directors. PEQAP would like to see the rate below 8 percent.

To provide more credibility for the program, Kradel noted, one proposal was to allow the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture animal health technicians to come in to the houses on unannounced inspections. There won't be prior notifications for animal health technicians to visit premises, according to Kradel, in order to provide the maximum level of credibility to the program. The committee did not finalize anything regarding the proposal, according to Kradel, and the proposal is still up for discussion.

NEWS

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. – Registering Holsteins is getting more and more convenient at Adrienne Holsteins in York, South Carolina.

R.B. Pursley and his son, brown, have recently stared using the EASY software program, to help get calves registered on time. They both believe in the value of identification and having a simple way to register Holsteins helps the process go smoothly.

The Pursleys recently started using the Holstein ID Tags. They were registering calves with the tags and a one-side photo, but R.B. said using EASY and the tags makes it much simpler.

Using EASY, producers can set up their account information once in the program, then input the current calf registration details. From there, they can output the registrations to a disk and mail it to the Association, or transfer it electronically using the Internet.

"We've transferred one batch using the Internet and it went very well,"R.B. said. "So far it's been very convenient as everything is already set up. It cuts down on the time and work in doing it by hand."

The farm has about 250 head in the milking string and about 700 total, with dry and young stock. Seventy-five percent of those are registered, and they have been registering their grade calves and young heifers with the Start-Up Program. They also plan on registering the young grade cows with the Start-Up.

Why are they registering their animals with the Association? "When people buy replacement heifers from us, and we sell quite a few, they like knowing the sire and dam information," he said. They sell replacements to producers throughout the southeast.

"The demand is better when there is sire and dam identification information," he said. "you can get more money if you know that, and if you have records on the animals."

They recently sold more than 50 cows to a neighbor who wanted all the ID information, and wants to continue the registrations. R.B. is transferring all the papers for him.

Registered Holsteins have not always been a part of the farm. Registered jerseys were milked in 1959, although R.B. was not active in the farm. Eventually, when his son returned to the farm, they began to buy Registered Holsteins.

"As time has gone on, we've been able to keep the registered and sell the grades, so our overall percentages have gone up," he said. "And when the Start-Up came along, we started registering again." He estimated that within a year everything would be registered again.

"It's expensive, and it takes time, but if you are going to sell cows, buyers want to know the sire and the dam information," he said.

For more information about the Start-Up Program, Tag ID or EASY, call the Holstein Association at 800-952-5200.

Land O'Lakes Awards Scholarships

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Land O'Lakes awarded scholarships to three Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences students during the college's annual scholarship banquet on Oct. 21.

Justin Howes, the son of Jay Howes and Sue Kauffman, Elizabeththown, was awarded $1,127 through the J. Lin Huber Scholarship. A junior majoring in agricultural business management, Howes is a member of the Dairy Science Club, the National Agri-Marketing Association, Ag Advocates and Alpha Zeta Fraternity. He plans to work in management for an agricultural company following graduation.

The Boyd C. Gartley Memorial Scholarship was awarded to Joseph Grimm and Kendra Weaver. Grimm, the son of Robert and Sharon Grimm, Smithfield, is a sophomore majoring in agricultural education and dairy and animal science. He is a member of the Dairy/Animal Science Club and is employed at the Penn State Swine Center. He hopes to work in production agriculture.

Kendra Weaver, the daughter of L. Keith and JoAnne Weaver, Reinholds, is a freshman majoring in agroecosystems. She is a member of the Collegiate FFA and the Ag and Sustainable Living Interest House. She plans to pursue overseas missionary work in agriculture following graduation. Weaver and Grimm shared the $1,800 scholarship.

A College of Agricultural Sciences committee selected the scholarship winners. The J. Lin Huber Scholarship is named for a former president of the Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative, while the Boyd C. Gartley Memorial Scholarship is named in memory of the cooperative's former communications director. Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative was a predecessor to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, which merged with Land O'Lakes in 1997.

Land O'Lakes is a national food and agricultural cooperative serving more than 12,000 family farmers in 30 states, including 3,000 dairy producers in the Mid-Atlantic region. Land O'Lakes is a leading marketer of dairy products across the U.S. and serves international customers with a variety of food and animal feed ingredients.

Texas, New Mexico Dairy Co-ops To Form Milk Marketing Agency

ARLINGTON, Texas — Four milk marketing cooperatives in Texas and New Mexico signed an agreement on Oct. 31 – to work together to market milk produced by dairy farmers in Texas and New Mexico.

Kansas City-based Dairy Farmers of America (DFA) is joining with Elite Milk Producers of Texas, Select Milk Producers of New Mexico and Zia Milk Producers of New Mexico in a reorganization of the Texas-New Mexico Milk Marketing Agency (TX-NMMMA), a milk-marketing agency that will be responsible for marketing more than 650 million pounds of milk per month produced by members of the four cooperatives.

Representatives of the four cooperatives met in Arlington, Texas, to sign papers making the agency official.

Those present included:

• From Dairy Farmers of America: Calvin Buchanan, chairman of the Southwest Area Council; Charles Beckendorf, vice president on DFA's corporate board; and Alva Carter, secretary of the Southwest Area Council board and a corporate director; Gary Hanman, president and chief executive officer; David Jones, chief operating officer of the Southwest Area Council; and Dale Finch, manager of milk marketing for the Southwest Area.

• From Elite Milk Producers: Donald DeJong, general manager and board member.

• From Select Milk Producers Inc.: Mike McCloskey, chief executive officer and board member; Brad Bouma, board director; and Tony Bros, president.

• From Zia Milk Producers: Frank Sheckarski, manager and board member.

The stated purpose of the milk marketing agency outlined in the organization documents are:

• To promote dairy farming in the Agency and the marketing of dairy products through cooperation.

• To eliminate speculation and waste in the production and marketing of milk, processed milk and other dairy products.

• To maximize the effectiveness of the processing, production, marketing and distribution of dairy products.

• To stabilize the production and marketing of dairy products and the related costs of such activities.

"This agency combines our marketing function to benefit our customers and the markets we serve," said Donald DeJong.

"The agency will also make our milk hauling operations much more efficient by allowing us to direct milk to the nearest customer whenever possible," added Tony Bos. "Because Texas and New Mexico have become a milk supplier to a broad geographic area, the ability to improve hauling efficiency has potential to be one of the most beneficial parts of this organization for the dairy farmers and consumers."

Under revised bylaws of the Texas-New Mexico Milk Marketing Agency, all costs of marketing and handling milk will be shared by the organizing cooperatives. The agency will serve as the marketing association for the four-cooperative agency, coordinating the administrative and logistical details of moving milk to customers.

"This is a whole new concept in milk marketing agencies, because all the costs are being shared by the organizing cooperatives," said David Jones. "The potential for cost savings for dairy farmers through this cooperative effort is tremendous. It is a win-win situation for all involved."

Calvin Buchanan, chairman of the Southwest Area Council of DFA, said he is excited about the possibilities the new agency offers dairy farmers. "We've made great progress in bringing dairy farmers together in our own organization and I think this agency is another step in helping dairy farmers realize the benefits of working together."

In a special meeting of the TX-NMMMA, the board of directors elected David Jones as chairman, Frank Scheckarski as treasurer and Dale Finch as secretary. Other board members are Donald DeJong and Tony Bos.

Cooperative Returns Revolving Certificates To Members Two Months Early

RESTON, Va. — Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc. distributed $1.3 million, or seven cents per hundredweight, to dairy farmers who shipped milk to the cooperative in 1990. Mailed on Wednesday, September 30, the distribution represents certificates held in the cooperative's revolving fund since 1991 For the past eight years, this portion of the revolving fund has contributed to maintaining the facilities and buildings owned by the cooperative.

Normally mailed on December 1, the certificates were mailed two months early this year, the second early distribution of funds within a 6-week period. The first was the 80-percent cash portion of the 1997 divisional earnings totaling $4.1 million, or 21 cents per hundredweight, mailed 11 days earlier than usual, on Friday, August 21.

"The board of directors was pleased to approve this early distribution to further supplement the excellent milk prices dairy farmers are enjoying this fall," says President Jack Hardesty, a dairy farmer from Berryville, Virginia.

Historical High Returns

For the past four years, Maryland and Virginia has returned an average of 71 cents/cwt above market prices to producers in cash. This figure includes over-order premiums, patronage dividends, profits from raw milk sales, and quality premiums.

Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association, headquartered in Reston, Va., is a milk marketing and processing cooperative which markets milk for about 1150 dairy farmers throughout Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Delaware. The cooperative includes Marva Maid, a milk processing division in Newport News, Va.; a manufacturing division in Laurel, Md.; and an equipment division in Frederick, Md.

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Meeting Next Week

government, taxpayer, senior citizen, environmental and agricultural organizations — including Farm Bureau — campaigned successfully for voter approval last November of a state constitutional amendment to allow a homestead exemption for residential property in local taxing jurisdictions.

In addition, Sen. Gerlach led efforts in the General Assembly for passage of Act 50 of 1998. The legislation, which was supported by Farm Bureau, clears the way for school property tax reform and includes provisions for a farmstead property tax exemption on farm buildings.

PFB's annual meeting activities on Monday will begin with an informal conference at 9:30 a.m. on the Food Quality Protection Act (FQPA). The Environmental Protection Agency's plans for implementing the 1996 FQPA threaten to ban many important farm chemicals without any improvements in food quality or food safety. Adam Sharp, assistant director of regulatory affairs at the American Farm Bureau Federation, will discuss the problem and what agriculture is doing to solve it.

Deliberations on proposed additions and revisions to PFB's current policies on farm issues will begin at 2 p.m. with a roll call of voting delegates from the county farm bureaus. The delegates will be meeting over the next two and one-half days to consider about 120 policy resolutions which were developed from grass-roots input by individual members.

Several more information conferences will take place Monday. At 2 p.m., John Becker, assistant professor of agricultural law and economics at The Pennsylvania State University, will conduct a session entitled "All in the Family — The Family's Role in Business Planning." The presentation will explore opportunities for, and obstacles to, expanding the role that families play in modern business decision-making situations, particularly those that involve agriculture.

A panel of guest speakers will address "Assistance With Long-Term Health Care" in an annual meeting session from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Dale Laninga, executive director of the Intra-governmental Council of Long Term Care at the Pennsylvania Department of Aging; Vicki Trimmer, an associate with the Harrisburg law firm of Mette, Evans & Woodside; and Steven Brady, marketing manager for the Nationwide Insurance Enterprise; will point out the myths and facts about long-term health care and will discuss options available for covering the expenses of long-term care.

The annual meeting of the PFB Marketing Cooperative will begin at 3:30 p.m., as will the business meeting of the PFB Young Farmer & Rancher Committee. Visitors and those attending the PFB Annual Meeting will have ample time to learn more about the programs and services available to Farm Bureau members by visiting the annual meeting exhibit area which will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Monday.

Monday evening, the annual meeting will take on a 1950s "Let's Go to the Hop" theme for the presentation of membership and Farm Bureau program awards. The activities will begin with a membership dinner at 6 p.m. County farm bureaus will be recognized for membership achievements during the past year and for excellence in carrying out Farm Bureau programs.

The Young Farmer & Rancher Committee will auction off donated craft items to raise funds for YF & R programs at the conclusion of the Monday evening awards presentations.

Celebrate At The Table

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Perhaps you think it's too early to think about the holidays. But Thanksgiving is less than two weeks away!

Some forethought and preparation can go a long way in eliminating last-minute stress when the house is filling up with guests.

Ideas for tablesettings, centerpieces, menus, and home decor abounded at the holiday workshop sponsored by the Penn State Cooperative Extension last week at the Lebanon Valley Expo Center. About 1,070 people attended the day-long program repeated three days.

One of the first things to decide is whether you want a formal sit-down dinner or a buffet.

Regardless of what you decide, here are some ideas to incorporate into your plans.

Hetty Wengert prepares a luncheon with a quilter's touch. The quilted tablecloth has a complementing fabric flower centerpiece and handmade napkin holders.

Get a head start on holiday entertaining by preparing make-ahead foods and freezing until ready to use.

TABLE TOPPERS

Use a square tablecloth or piece of fabric or lace and place diagnonally on top of a tablecloth. Or use a cloth runner that either matches or coordinates with cloth napkins.

If you need a long tablecloth, make one. Double knit and drapery fabric come in wide widths. Use a quilt or quilted fabric.

Rent a tablecloth. In fact, everything imaginable can be rented nowadays. In addition to typical rent-it companies, check with flower shops and those that cater to weddings.

At the program, a silk floral design shop called Expressions displayed numerous items that they rent. Expressions is located two miles north of Myerstown on Rt. 501 or 4 miles south of I-78 Bethel on Rt. 501.

CLOTH NAPKINS

Cloth napkins lend an air of luxury to table settings. But you don't need to spend a fortune on napkins.

An easy and economical way to make napkins is to buy cotton teatowels. Cut in half and hem the raw edge. Or you can purchase material by the yard, cut out, and either hem the edges or, if you have a serger, use it to serge a finished edge.

DISHES

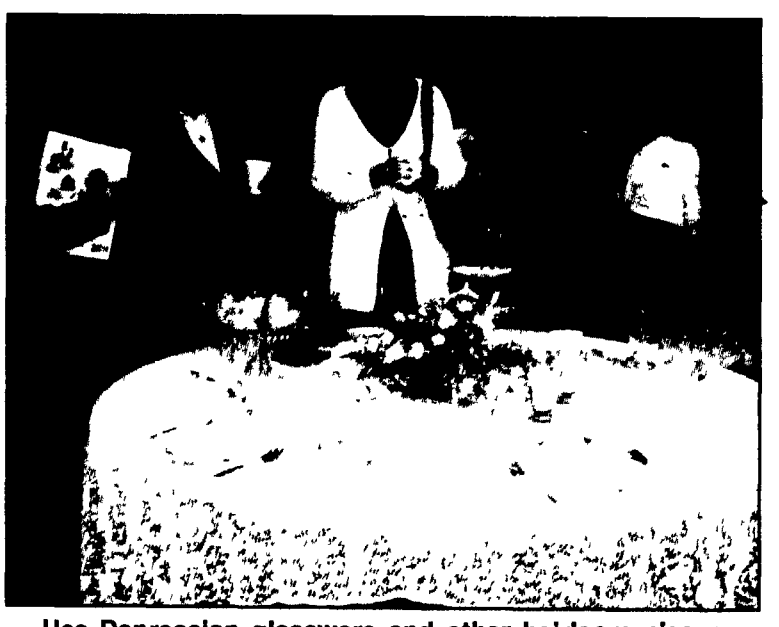
Forget the rule that you need matching dishes for a sit-down meal. You can mix different patterns if they are in the same style or period.

Heirloom glassware and colored glass can be mixed if the colors blend with the dish colors. To make this work, you need to have a variety of things to mix—not just one or two different items.

(Turn to Page B4)

Marian Hummel, center, instructs guests how to set the table for a formal sit-down Thanksgiving dinner.

HOMESTEAD NOTES



Use Depression glassware and other heirloom pieces with your china. You can mix different patterns of china and glassware if they are of the same style or period.

Celebrate At The Table

"Set up the food on a long buffet table that is 'landscaped' at different levels to add interest and easier access," said Christenna Stamm.

To do this you need a base table covering. Locate assorted boxes or tin cans to create a variety of levels to serve as a base for platters and bowls. Be sure the boxes are sturdy enough to hold the food. Cover the boxes or cans with a complementary cloth draped over them.

If you use slow cookers and electric skillets to keep food hot, set the table near outlets and tape down cords to prevent hazards.

HOLIDAY OPEN HOUSE

Food and beverages can be arranged throughout the room or even in more than one room. The tables should look coordinated but need not match.

CENTERPIECES

For a sit-down dinner, a centerpiece needs to be low enough to talk over or tall enough to be above eye level.

Centerpieces no longer need to be fresh flowers and candles. Select items that coordinate with the event. For example, a Thanksgiving centerpiece can be a combination of gourds, pilgrim figurines, potted mums, and dried weeds.

A Christmas centerpiece can be arranged with glittery holiday balls, fresh greens, ribbons, pinecones, gingerbread cutouts, and small packages.

Christenna Stamn suggests using a football helmet for a buffet for the guys.

GOOD TASTES

As she does annually, Letie Schadler, Lebanon County home economist, presented some great recipes for entertaining guests during the holidays. Recipes that can be made ahead are timesavers.

Here are some recipes to incorporate into your Thanksgiving menu.

CRANBERRY MUSHROOM SAUCE

8 ounces sliced mushrooms
2 cloves garlic, minced
¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons A-1 sauce
1¾ to 2 cups cranberry juice
½ cup dried cranberries
1 tablespoon chopped chives

Saute mushrooms in garlic butter. Add the A-1 and simmer together for a few minutes. Add the cranberries and juice and simmer to reduce volume. Add the chives just before serving.

Serve as a sauce spooned over the sliced tenderloin. Sauce also adds moisture when reheating meat.

QUICK TRICKS WITH DRIED CRANBERRIES

Cornbread: Stir dried cranberries into cornbread batter; allow ½ to 1 cup dried cranberries to an 8- to 9-inch pan.

Muffins: Instead of blueberries, substitute dried cranberries.

Toppings: Sprinkle dried cranberries over prepared cereal, oatmeal or granola.

Yogurt: Stir dried cranberries into vanilla or fruit-flavored yogurt.

Cookies: Instead of raisins, add an equal amount of cranberries to dough.

CRANBERRY SPREAD OR DIP

½ cup canned jellied or cranberry sauce
2 tablespoons grainy Dijon mustard
1 tablespoon brown sugar

Combine ingredients and chill to blend flavors. Can be served as a sauce over chicken, turkey or ham. Or spread on sandwiches or use as a dip for pretzels. Store in refrigerator. Keeps for a few weeks.

PORK TENDERLOIN WITH CRANBERRY MUSHROOM SAUCE

2 whole pork tenderloins

Marinade:

½ cup cranberry juice
2 cloves garlic, crushed
1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
1½ tablespoons olive oil

Marinate pork tenderloins in a plastic bag placed in the refrigerator overnight or for several hours. The longer the soak, the better the flavor.

Remove tenderloins from the marinade and place on a rack in a shallow pan. Bake in preheated 400-degree oven for 25-30 minutes until the internal temperature reaches 160 degrees. Slice and top with the Cranberry Mushroom sauce.

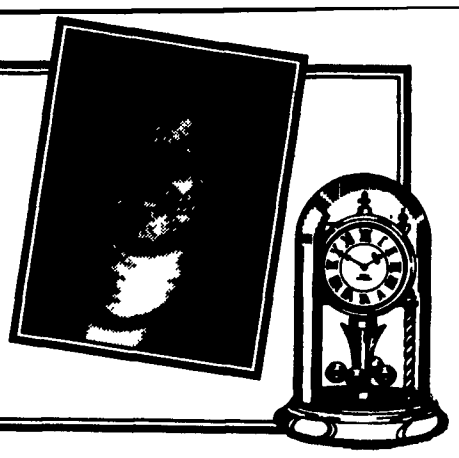
Taking Time by Rebecca Escott



Taking Time for Stories

In the next few weeks, our minds will turn nostalgic as many families pack up the car and head "over the river and through the woods" to grandmother's house for Thanksgiving week gatherings. Family gatherings are a great time to slow down for a few moments and share stories.

This past year I discovered a wonderful children's book, "All the Places to Love," by Patricia MacLachlan. This beautifully illustrated book shows a family whose heritage is a rural family farm. Each person loves a different part of the property, but collectively agree that no matter how far they travel from this upbringing, the family farm will still provide them with strength and a special joy. I found myself becoming homesick for my family farm in south-central Pennsylvania as I read the book.

I also found myself wanting to read the story to my daughter whose only home has been in a small city. I want her to have that heritage from me. I also long for her to have these pictures in her mind as she prepares to travel "over the river and through the woods to Grandmother's house" in two weeks. Grandpa Wolf's barn and cows are sure to be on her list of "places to love" as she grows up.

Storybooks and storytelling are a way to connect the generations, and the holidays are a great time to do that. Use the time that you spend in the car this coming week to share stories. Ask questions like, "Mom or Dad, what was one of your favorite dates you went on before you got married?" "What's one of the favorite things that we do together as a family?" "What makes us different than the other families in our area?"

Because our family is dealing with some changes and challenges, I find myself wanting to hear from the older people in our family. "Tell me about some of the hard decisions you had to make when you were a young couple." For me it's a way to tap into the strength and wisdom of another generation.

Last week, I learned about another way to develop family stories that help people to reminisce and connect over time. It involves a "Book of Days." Simply described, a "Book of Days" is a three-ring binder with 365 blank pages – one for each day of the year. Each is labeled with the day, "January 1; January 2; ... April 23; etc." As significant things occur in a family's life, an entry is made on the appropriate page including the year and a description of the event. The book can last for many years. As one page fills, add a new one for that day. Entries might include: tornado touched down in our neighbor's field today; Suzanne brought home a report card with all A's; new kitchen cabinets finally installed; Magic (the family dog) had three puppies; David had wisdom teeth removed; Karen voted in her first election.

As a routine, each day you can turn the page (like you do a daily calendar) and check out the things that happened on this day in past years in your family. Over time, this "Book of Days" will become a memoir of your family's life and will be a great source of stories. The entries can be one-liners, but they will spark a host of stories.

If you're not feeling nostalgic, you can still enjoy story time. Survey your bookshelves for some good read-aloud books or go to the library and check out a few. "Charlotte's Web" by E.B. White, "Green Eggs and Ham" by Dr. Seuss, "Never Spit on Your Shoes" by Denys Cazet, and "The Witch of Blackbird Pond" by Elizabeth George Speare are a few titles to get you started.

Muffins On The Rise

Muffins come in all flavors and sizes. Whether it is breakfast on the run or a sit-down and savor the taste, muffins are a popular choice.

Baking powder and baking soda are generally used to give muffins a rise.

Muffins have been around for centuries, but they enjoyed a big comeback several years ago when people considered muffins a low-fat alternative to a fat-laden breakfast. People often surmise that muffins are more nutritious than yeast breads. But, beware. Just because the sign and shapes identifies it as a muffin, doesn't mean that it isn't loaded with calories. In fact, a muffin at a popular eatery can have as high as 29 grams of fat.

Remember that both white and whole wheat are considered wheat products. If you looked at the nutrition facts label, you might be surprised how little difference there is between most whole wheat muffins and enriched flour goodies. Look for a whole grain ingredient since whole grains generally have more fiber and more vitamins. While it is true that refined flour is enriched to replace some of the vitamins removed during processing, not all of them are replaced. You can't really tell that from the nutrition label, since not all vitamins and minerals are listed on the label.

Folic acid, a B vitamin, is one example. It has made headlines as a possible supplement in bread to help prevent birth defects, ward off heart attacks, strokes, and some kinds of cancer. According to one analysis, white bread provides about 8 to 10 micrograms of folate a slice. Whole wheat bread provides about three times as much—but not nearly enough to meet the 400 micrograms recommended for women in their child-bearing years.

Trace minerals are also more prevalent in whole wheat. There is more than three times the magnesium and twice the copper in whole wheat compared to white bread. Potassium and zinc are two others that are missed in the enrichment process. Enriched white flour is likely to have the same amounts of niacin, riboflavin, thiamin, and iron as whole wheat.

Muffins made entirely from whole grain have more fiber and some other advantages. But beware—a darker color doesn't necessarily mean that the muffin is made from the whole grain rather than refined flour.

Satisfying, simple-to-make muffins can be served for snacks, breakfast, lunch, dinner, tea, and for dessert.

Here are some recipes to make your own muffins.

CIDER MUFFINS

2 cups unbleached white flour
1½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
⅔ cup raisins
1 large egg
¾ cup fresh apple cider
4 tablespoons melted butter
¼ cup maple syrup

Cinnamon sugar:

3 tablespoons granulated or brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter, melted

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Spray muffin tins with non-stick spray. In a large bowl, sift together flour, baking powder, and baking soda, salt, and cinnamon. Add the raisins and toss to coat with the flour mixture.

In a smaller bowl, beat egg until light and slightly thickened. Add the cider, butter, and maple syrup and beat mix. Add to dry ingredients and stir with a spoon just until flour is incorporated. Spoon the batter into prepared pan filling cups two-thirds full. Bake 20 minutes.

Remove from oven, brush with melted butter and sprinkle tops with mixture of cinnamon and sugar mixture. 12 muffins.

LO-CALORIE APPLE MUFFINS

3 apples
3 eggs
3 tablespoon sugar substitute
¼ teaspoon orange extract
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
3 slices white bread

Grate apples. Beat eggs and add spices. Break bread into small pieces and mix. Blend grated apples into mix. Place in six section muffin tin. Bake at 375 degrees for 45 minutes. Use a non-stick spray instead of fluted paper cups. About 40 calories per muffin.

These taste like high-calorie baked goods. You can't taste or tell the difference.

COFFEE MUFFINS

2 cups all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
4 tablespoon butter, melted
1 cup strong coffee
⅓ cup brown sugar
1 large egg

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Grease or line muffin pans. In a large bowl, stir together flour, baking powder, and salt. Stir in walnuts.

In a smaller bowl, mix melted butter, hot coffee, and sugar. Beat in the egg then mix with the dry ingredients. Spoon into prepared muffin pans. Bake for 20 minutes. Yields: 12 muffins.

ARTICHOKE AND GOAT CHEESE BUNDLES

2 tablespoons butter
½ cup chopped green onion
1 tablespoon snipped fresh thyme
1 clove garlic, crushed
9-ounce package frozen artichoke hearts, thawed, chopped
2 tablespoons chicken broth
8-ounces goat cheese
⅛ teaspoon salt
9 sheets frozen Phyllo dough, thawed
6 tablespoons melted butter

Melt 2 tablespoons butter in large skillet. Add green onion, thyme and garlic; cook and stir over medium heat for about 3 minutes or until onions are tender.

Add artichoke hearts and broth to mixture in skillet. Simmer, uncovered about 3 minutes or until liquid evaporates. Remove from heat. Stir in goat cheese and salt. Cool slightly.

Unfold Phyllo. Place one sheet of phyllo dough on a cutting board lined with waxed paper, keeping remaining sheets covered with plastic wrap. This is very important or the sheets will quickly dry out and break.

Generously brush the sheet with some of the 6 tablespoons melted butter. Top with another sheet of phyllo, then brush with more melted butter. Repeat with third sheet.

Trim stacked phyllo sheets into a 12x16-inch rectangle. Cut into 12 four-inch squares, using a knife. Place about 2 teaspoons filling in the center of each square. For each bundle, bring the four corners together; pinch and twist slightly.

Repeat with remaining phyllo dough, butter, and filling to make 36 bundles. Place unbaked bundles in a single layer on baking sheets and freeze until firm. Place frozen bundles in freezer container and freeze up to 3 months, if desired.

To serve, place frozen bundles in a single layer on baking sheet. Do not thaw before baking or pastries will be soggy. Bake uncovered in a 375-degree oven for 18 minutes or until golden.

Note: freezing is not a necessary step. You can assemble them and put the bundles directly into a 375-degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes or until golden. Makes 36. Other fillings can be used in place of the artichoke mixture.

It's Dusty. It's Dirty.

It makes the yard a mess. It's extra work. But, it's recycling a tried and true tradition.

It's warm and cozy. It smells nice.

It's cheap.

What is it? Why, it's heating with wood, of course.

Yep, the woodstove is fired up once again. And, boy, does it feel great.

"I love our woodstove," a friend said recently, praising the wood burner which they used to keep their home snuggly during the cold weather. She elaborated on her affection for the burning of wood as a heat source, citing the steadiness of the warmth, and that distinctive homey fragrance of this natural heating fuel.

My sentiments exactly. And so, now that frosty mornings and brisk evenings once again underline our weather patterns, we, too, have stoked up the basement wood burner.

Burnable wood is a readily-available raw material for us. And, it would really be a shame to waste it.

At least once a year, a tree somewhere in a fencerow or along one of the woodlots topples it to the ground, victim or age or disease. Fallen trees immediately begin to deteriorate, though depending on what type of species they are, may take a long time to compost back into the earth to nurture future generations of seedlings.

Sometimes they smash down part of a cattle fence, or crash down in parts of the meadow where a calf or heifer snuggle down behind them and not be visible. Since these fallen trees must be removed anyway, it only makes good sense to section them into workable portions for fuel use.

And then there are lots of trees which spread vigorous, long limbs several yards out over edges of numerous fields which border on wooded areas. Those limbs shade growing crops, lessening the corn, hay or soybeans' vigor and productivity, as well as making them more susceptible to insects or disease. Like over-eager shrubs outgrowing their landscape, those need periodic trimming and pruning to keep them from overstepping their bounds.

All these provide fodder for the fire, as well as fuel to heat the body.

There's the old cliche' that wood warms a body at least three times — when it is cut, when it is stacked and when it is carried. For us, that just gets it from the fencerows, to the pick-up, to the back yard. Splitting offers additional warming to The Farmer, which he often does a few sections at a time as he passes through on his way to the house. Factor in additional round of body warmth as we stack it on the porch and haul it inside for use.

A smug feeling of self-satisfaction helps warm the psyche as well, having that stash of wood as insurance against cold and damp inside our old farmhouse. Lack of power offers tremendous complications to a business dependent on electric to keep cranked the motors, pumps, milkers, feeders and cooling compressors on which our dairy operation hinges. But at least we can be self-sufficient in having a wood-warmed place to sleep and a fire on which to cook, should a dreaded, wintry-weather power outtage hit.

Those who grew up a generation ahead of us, and who spent their childhoods helping to appease the appetites of woodstoves, sometimes shudder with a "been there, done that" grimace when we even mention heating with wood.

One day last week, while wrestling with an armload of wood, I bumped the stack on the porch and a couple of large chunks connected with my foot The ensuing sharp pain in a big toe flashed a burst of insight as to why a child who had grown up with memories of such incidents might be perfectly happy with thermostatically-controlled, automatic heat.

As an adult, I guess I'll weigh an occasional dent in the foot against the dent in the budget from other ways of heating.

And haul in another load of wood. More carefully.

Creating Healthy Landscapes

Manage the health and beauty of trees, shrubs, and flowers with soil testing and minimal pesticide use. One method called integrated pest management (IPM); involves looking at the total landscape; identifying the insect the mite, disease, or growing condition that appears to be causing a problem; and if any action need to be taken, choosing from a variety of sound management strategies. This approach takes into account that only three to five percent of insect species are harmful and that most pests have natural enemies such as birds, toads, and beneficial insects to keep them in check.

Here are five steps to take better care of your landscape plants:

- Choose Trees And Shrubs Wisely
- Plant Trees and Shrubs With Care
- Promote Healthy Plants
- Clean Up Plant Debris
- Monitor Pest And Beneficial Insect

Select plants that are suited to the conditions in your landscape. For instance, if the soil is acidic, choose plants that prefer acid conditions. If most of the area is shaded, then you need plants that prefer shade. Plants placed in the wrong location will not thrive and will be susceptible to many problems in the future. Select plant cultivars that are known to be less susceptible to insects, mites, and diseases. Also, consider growing plants that are native to your area, or native with similar growing conditions.

Help plants get a good start by planting them correctly. Mistakes made when planting or when applying mulch can result in weakened plants that are prone to problems.

Healthy, vigorous plants are less vulnerable to damage caused by insects, mites, and diseases. Provide the best growing conditions by soil testing for pH level and the nutrients in the soil, preparing soil well before planting and then using fertilizer only as needed. A soil test is available at Penn State Cooperative Extension for $6 each. Water plants regularly until they become established. Follow proper pruning recommendations.

Debris that builds up in the landscape may harbor pests and plant diseases. Remove dead or dying plants. Rake and remove leaves that drop off plants. If a branch is broken or diseased, prune it. Use organic mulches that have been composited properly. Apply a layer no deeper than two or three inches, making sure the mulch does not touch the trunk or main stem of the plant.

Inspect plants regularly throughout the season for beneficial insects, mites, diseases, or any unusual changes in appearance that might indicate a problem. Accurate identification of the cause is essential for evaluating the situation and determining what, if any, management tactics are needed Be aware that if a pest shows up, natural enemies that prey on it often appear as well. To monitor the health of plants in a landscape, you also must be able to recognize these beneficial insects. You may need to tolerate some plant injury before populations of beneficial insects and mites build up enough to keep a pest in check.

It is important to understand the biology of many different plants. Additionally, knowing how pests and plants are affected by weather is important. For a series of healthy landscape factsheets, contact your local Extension Office or call York County Cooperative Extension, at (717) 840-7408.

Any questions can be directed to Thomas S. Becker, horticultural agent, Penn State Cooperative Extension, York County (717) 840-7408 or Email at Yorkmg@psu.edu.

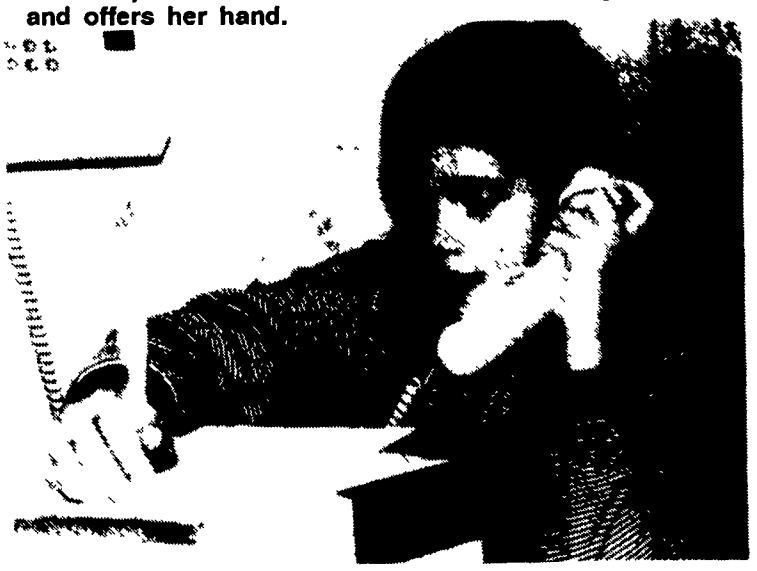
Kids Korner

"Mother, meet my friend Elise Pelsinski. Elise, this is my mother Nancy Wiker," said Dana. "Pleased to meet you," Elise responds as she looks Mrs. Wiker in the eye, smiles, and offers her hand.



Dana knows that good telephone manners are needed. Part of good telephone etiquette is learning to take write down messages.

Learning to use chopsticks takes lots of practice. Since Dana practices at home, she hopes that when she eats out with friends, she'll be able to eat neatly.

Always practice good manners by writing thank you notes for gifts and thoughtful things that others do for you.

Dana is aghast as she watches her friend place a whole piece of bread on her plate and then butter it with the butter knife. Bread should always be broken in half before buttering. Use the butter knife to slice off a sliver to place on your plate. Never use the butter knife to butter your bread.

Practice Good Manners

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — When nine-year-old friends Elise Pelsinski and Dana Wiker had a day off from school this week, they spent it practicing good manners.

They had lots of laughs and a few spills learning how to eat with chop sticks.

Dana's mother, Nancy Wiker, who is a home economist for Lancaster Extension, set one table with china, crystal stemware, and silverware, and another table with plates and chopsticks.

Place settings with three spoons, two forks, and a knife no longer confuses these two girls.

"This is the soup spoon," Elise pointed out.

"And, this one is for dessert," Dana said of the one that is left after using the first one with the main dish.

Like most of their friends, the two girls grow up hearing that good manners mean "elbows off the table," and "napkins on your lap."

But Dana and Elise also know that when they are finished eating, they should place their utensils on the middle of their plates and lay their napkins on the table.

They know the butter knife is not to be used for spreading butter on their bread. Although for some fun during the picture-taking session, Elise did use it to butter her bread much to Dana's horror.

Soup should be eaten by spooning it away from your body.

The girls practiced meeting strangers and introducing each other to their mothers.

"You should look the adult in the eye when you say 'hello' and shake their hand," Dana said.

Dana's mom teaches parents on how to teach children good manners. Mrs. Wiker said that role playing is a good way for children to learn good manners.

Manners don't only show when people are watching you. Manners show over the telephone. Practice good telephone manners. Identity yourself and learn how to take messages.

At first spooning soup away from her is a bit awkward, but Elise learns that this method helps prevent the soup from slopping on her while eating soup.

What do you do if the unexpected happens? For example, what do you say if someone gives you a gift that you don't like?

Should you lie?

Mrs. Wiker prepares her children for these unexpected ocassions by having them role play the event and say, "Thank you for thinking of me and giving me a gift."

"And, always, write a thank you note," Dana said.

"Right away," her mother said. "Before they forget."

Many books are available on etiquette for children and teen-agers. For a listing of resource books, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Nancy Wiker, 1383 Arcadia Dr., Lancaster, PA 17601.

CINNAMON AND CLOVES

The fragrances and flavors of fall would be bland and unexciting without the addition of cinnamon and cloves. Rarely are apples and pumpkins, two of our favorite fall foods, not teamed with cinnamon and cloves. Although these are two very popular and common spices, what do we know about them?

Cinnamon

True cinnamon comes from the bark of a tropical evergreen tree. It is tan in color and has a mildly sweet flavor. Cassia, a close cousin of true cinnamon, is commonly used in the United States. It has a darker, reddish-brown color and a more pungent, slightly bittersweet flavor.

As you know, cinnamon is available ground or in sticks. The sticks usually have more intense flavor and odor and can be stored longer. Cinnamon sticks are great swizzle sticks when used with hot beverages such as cider, hot chocolate, coffee, and mulled wine.

In my family, cinnamon sugar is a popular seasoning. Cinnamon sugar is sprinkled over French toast and waffles. We also use it to sweeten coffee. We make our by simply pouring some sugar into a bowl and mixing in a little ground cinnamon, but I did find a recipe that calls for 1/2 cup of sugar and 1 to 1-1/2 tablespoons of ground cinnamon. If you keep the mixture in an airtight container, it stays fresh longer.

Cloves

Cloves, like cinnamon, come from a tropical evergreen tree. They are actually dried, unopened flower buds. Cloves are reddish-brown in color and are described as "nail-shaped." Like cinnamon, this spice can be purchased either ground or whole. Cloves have a very pungent flavor—a bit goes a long way!

Although cloves go well with many fruit recipes such as marmalades and stewed fruits, they also go well with meat. Ham seasoned with cloves is a classic dish. Also, consider sticking cloves into an onion, then using the onion to flavor soups and stews. Remove the whole cloves before serving the dish in which they were used.

Home Fragrance

Many manufacturers of commercial air fresheners use cinnamon as a base, and you can make your own air fresh by doing the same. Combine one teaspoon of ground cinnamon or one cinnamon stick (broken into several pieces) with six cups of water, and bring to a boil. Reduce this to a simmer, and allow the scent to flow throughout your home.

I like to sprinkle ground cinnamon and cloves on a dry cookie sheet, and place the sheet in a warm oven. Cloves help to mask even the most offensive odors such as fish, onions and cabbage.

A bowl of pomanders is a beautiful, fragrant centerpiece and is quite popular at this time of the year. To make pomanders, start with apples, lemons, or oranges. Insert lots of whole cloves into them.

Wayne County Fair

Fifteen Wayne County 4-H clubsw took the opportunity to put together their version of "Wayne County's Bicentennial" by creating a four-foot by four-foot exhibit at the recent Wayne County Fair.

First place was awarded to Calkins Ag 4-H Club. Placing second in the contest was the Wayne County Highsteppers. The Cold Springs-Rileyville 4-H Club received third honors. Fourth place was awarded to the Explorers 4-H Club and fifth place honors was taken by the Laurella 4-H Club.

Something new for 4-H clubs to enter this year was the 4-H "Club Scrapbook" category. Taking first place was TriGal; secondplace, Bethany 4-H Club and third place, Laurella.

Dealing With Grief During The Holidays

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Lancaster Co.) — The holidays are touted as a season of joy, family togetherness, and euphoric celebrating.

But for some people, the upcoming holidays bring pain, despair, and fearful expectations.

"Nobody knows what it feels like to face that first Christmas after a loved one dies, unless it happens to them," said a grieving spouse.

"Unfortunately, it isn't just the first Christmas that is difficult to face. Sometimes the second year is even worse," said Michele Urbine.

Michele, director of training and community outreach for Fred Groff Funeral Home, works with individuals and groups to help them deal with the grieving aspect of death and coping. Michele recently presented a session on the subject at the Penn State Berks County Extension Holiday Program.

To the bereaved, Michele stressed the importance of grieving, of being patient with the process, and of reaching out, allowing yourself to be surrounded by caring people.

Michele said that friends and family need to realize that it isn't only the holiday itself that is difficult, but the fear of the upcoming day can be more painful than the day itself.

The short day hours and the long dark hours of the winter season add to the depression.

Wounds That Don't Heal

Especially difficult for parents and grandparents is burying a child or grandchild. "You expect you or your spouse will die first. But that doesn't always happen," Michelle said.

Gloria Craley knows. She mourned the loss of her daughter-in-law who was killed in an automobile accident. Troubling to the family are the questions: "Why did a young healthy mother have to die? Why did we need to lose a vital and contributing part of our family life?"

The wounds are torn afresh by watching her two-year-old grandson grow up without his mother.

Gloria finds the Christmas season especially difficult. She said that when thinking about the birth of the Christ child, one thinks of the mother-and-child relationship.

"Mothers and their children have a special bond. No one loves like Mom, cooks like Mom, hugs like Mom. . . .

"I become depressed thinking about what to do to fill the void of his mother's death," Gloria said.

As a grandparent, Gloria said that she may have a tendency to overcompensate for her grandson's loss.

"But nothing anyone does or says can completely fill the loss of a special loved one," she said.

In time, the "relationship title" may be taken over by another. A spouse may remarry, but that doesn't mean the feelings of loss have dissipated. The presence of a new person in family gatherings may add to the turmoil of other family members.

"They don't laugh the same or do the same neat things that the lost loved one did," Gloria said. "Dealing and accepting things as they are is an ongoing job that must be worked on intensely."

For many people who have lost a loved one, the holidays are a painful reminder of their loss. Knowing that these feelings are a normal reaction to grief can help people cope.

Emotional Responses To Grief

"No one has the same experience," Michelle said. However, after much research and work with people experiencing loss, Michelle said that some of the things that the bereaved can expect include the following:

- Your grief will take longer than most people think.
- Your grief will take more energy than you ever imagined.
- You will grieve for many things both symbolic and tangible, not just the death alone.
- Your loss will resurrect old issues, feelings, and unresolved conflicts from the past.
- You may have a combination of anger and depression, such as irritability, frustration, annoyance, or intolerance.
- You will have trouble thinking (memory, organization, and intellectual processing), and making decisions.
- Society will have unrealistic expectations about your mourning and may respond inappropriately to you.

Myths People Hold

Michele said that she heard of a radio survey in which people on the street were asked how long they expect it would take them to recuperate from the death of their spouse. Michele was appalled to hear that the average answer to that question was two months.

Those misconceptions are typical of those who have never experienced the loss of a loved one.

"Intense grief can hit you temporarily, years later in life," Michelle said.

Some other myths that people hold about grief are that all bereaved people grieve in the same way and that grief always declines over time in a steadily decreasing fashion. They erroneously believe when grief is resolved it never comes up again.

Another myth is that it is better to put painful things out of your mind. Some people believe that they cannot allow themselves to think about the deceased loved one during the holidays or it will make them sad.

On the other hand, some people believe that bereaved individuals need only to express their feelings and they will resolve their grief. It isn't that easy.

Knowing that these feelings and reactions are normal can help people cope with loss. Michelle recommends giving people time to feel emotions that are normal.

Healing Process

"I'm a big believer that prayer is big help," Michele said. "Both tears and laughter bring wonderful healing."

A tribute such as the following can help family members express emotions and enjoy memories of the loved one.

Place four candles on the table surrounded by an unadorned green wreath. When family and friends gather, each candle is lit in tribute to the loved one.

A family member could say when lighting the first candle: "This candle represents our sadness. The hurt from losing you is profound. We are forever reminded of the love we have for you."

When lighting the second candle, these words are suggested: "This candle represents our strength to challenge our misfortune, to comfort those we love, to transform our existence."

When lighting the third candle, say: "This light is for our remembrance, the many memories we hold with laughter, crying, anger, and even the crazy things we did together, the support and hope you gave us to love."

Symbolic of the fourth candle are these words: "This light is the light of our devotion. This season will be different than any other season we have experienced. You have made a difference in the life of many people. I am very grateful for the impact you made on me. A special place in my heart will hold

Farm Women Mark 81 Years At Lancaster Convention

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Society of Farm Women of Lancaster County celebrated its 81st year at a day-long convention held at the Farm and Home Center last Saturday.

The county society raised $2,915 to donate to the Lancaster American Red Cross. Accepting the donation was Kandace Rollman, financial development specialist for the Red Cross.

The celebration was touched with bit of sadness as the members participated in a memorial service for 18 members who had passed away during the last year. In charge of the memorial service were Marian Kurtz of Society 13; Sylvia Lehner of Society 21; and Julia Zahn of Society 1.

In addition to 23 guests from other counties, six members who are 90 years old or older were recognized. These included Mary Grace Martin of Society 8 who is 100 years old. Born in 1908 were Sara Weber of Society 1, Martha Landis of Society 7, Eliabeth Shuman of Society 8; Anna Mae Ney of Society 8, and Mary Brinley of Society 9.

In keeping with the society's commitment to uphold the dignity of farming, the program included reports from commodity representatives. Audra Wood, Quarryville, spoke of her work as the county dairy princess. Sarah Woodling, Landisville, told of her scientific experimentation with eggs that led her to the position of Lancaster County Poultry Ambassador.

Nancy Wiker, home economist for the Lancaster County Extension Service, spoke on Food Trends and Grazing.

The entertainment included a challenging message by Doris Ortman of Chambersburg. Although physically handicapped, she refuses to waste her time by being angry or bitter. Instead she continues a musical ministry. The Appalachian Players also provided musical entertainment.

Providing leadership to the county's 28 individual societies with 587 members are Allegra Leininger, president; Barbara Nissley, first vice president; Hazel Reist, secretary; and Betty Griffith, treasurer.

One of the ways members raise money for service projects is through the selling of Entertainment Books. For more information about the book, call Lorna King, a Millersville member at (717) 872-6632.

The Lancaster Society was organized in 1917 by Barbara Moore and Florence M. Brubaker. The county society is part of the state organization that was founded in 1914 by Mrs. Frank Black. Its primary purpose is for farm women to serve others by meeting the needs of the heart, soul, and mind by promoting better living and working conditions and influencing the world.

The state organization has 2,772 members and holds an annual meeting during the Pennsylvania Farm Show and a Spring Rally in May.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Most people take their vacations in the summertime. But as we live on a dairy farm, we have learned over the years to take day trips. Even now, though we're not tied to a milking schedule, we still enjoy a day away from the farm now and then.

So, the other week I had an opportunity to visit Pearl Buck's home in Buck's County near Philadelphia. The size impressed me and also the number of things that she wrote. Many articles, poems, and books were written by her and totaled 425. She received both the Pulitzer and the Nobel prize. She adopted several Asian-American children ad set up a foundation to continue this adoption process even today.

Another recent excursion was to a dinner theatre where we saw "The sound of Music." Even though I have enjoyed the movie several times, I still get pleasure from this romantic treasure with Maria, the VonTrapp children, and the Captain.

Oneway to make myself really clean our house is to have company for a meal. Sure, I clean every week—vacuum, dust, and wash a few windows. But, having several couples here for supper gives me a push.

My sister tells me, and I agree, that no one but I will know the difference. Even so I fell better knowing the furniture has been moved and rugs have been taken out on the porch. Some of our furniture is simply too heavy to move unless all of their contents would be removed.

Many a woman has been embarrassed when her refrigerator was moved and there was a thick pile of dust under it. We do what we can.

Beekeepers Learn Strategies For Success

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) – With crippling diseases, parasitic mites, and a potentially harsh winter threatening honey bee colonies, Pennsylvania's beekeepers are meeting to share ideas and gather information that could mean the difference between success and failure.

Novice and experienced beekeepers alike can learn more about bee biology, mite and disease control, and good hive management practices during the Pennsylvania State Beekeepers Association's annual winter meeting, Nov. 13-14 at the Country Cupboard Inn in Lewisburg.

The meeting will open on the afternoon of Nov. 13 with a session for beginning beekeepers or those who want to learn more about the basics.

"Winter is the best time to start beekeeping," said Jennifer Finley, association president and entomology research technician in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "By starting in winter, new beekeepers will have the knowledge and equipment they need to be successful when the spring bee season rolls around."

Workshops will address the biology of bees, management through the seasons, mite and disease management, honey production and uses of honey. An alternative Friday afternoon session will give leaders of county bee organizations an opportunity to share program ideas, resources and other information.

On Nov. 14, workshops for experienced beekeepers will cover roadside marketing of bee products; alternatives to Apistan for the control of varroa mites; a report on Pennsylvania apiary inspections; information on a new bee pest, the small hive beetle; background on the Mid-Atlantic Apiculture Research and Extension Consortium; a National Honey Board update; and a roundup of Penn State honey bee research projects.

Presenters will include bee experts Scott Camazine, Maryann Frazier and Jennifer Finley of Penn State's entomology department; Dewey Caron of the University of Delaware; Joerg Schmidt-Bailey of Rutgers University; Robert Skidmore of West Virginia University; Jim Steinhauer of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture; Jill Clark of Dutch Gold Honey; and Master Beekeeper Jerry Ely of Susquehanna County

An apiary products show also will be held, with awards for the best honey, beeswax and honey baked goods. In addition, Ann Harmon, honey cookery writer for Bee Culture magazine, will present a honey cookery demonstration.

For more information on the annual meeting or for registration details, contact Yvonne Crimbring at (717) 673-8201.

Dealing With Grief During The Holidays

your love forever. What made you special will live in me forever. I love you."

Here are some more ideas on coping with the holidays from Michele:

Plant a balled tree in memory of the deceased. Make or buy an ornament for the tree that represents the missing person. Design a Christmas card. Volunteer by helping at a homeless shelter or at some other charity.

Survival Self-Check

• Misattribution of control: Am I spending more time and worry on things that I cannot control, while ignoring those things that I can actually control?

• Guilt: The only purpose of guilt is to help remind us when we have done some wrong. How much guilt have I been feeling lately? Is it possible to let some or all go?

• Invasion of boundaries: Am I having difficulty saying no? Am I letting people take too much of my time and energy?

• Sense of humor: When was the last time I laughed?

Sometimes by examining our thoughts, we can recognize that our thought processes are adding more stress to our emotions. Redirect your thought processes. Learn to set boundaries.

More information and ideas on dealing with the loss of a loved one during the holiday season is available. Send $1 to the Berks County Cooperative Extension, P.O. Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533-0520. Be sure to include your name and complete address.

QUESTION — Peter Juerss writes that in the late 1970s or early 1980s, J.C. Whitey had a book, which he thinks was titled "How To Convert Your Car, Van, or Pickup to Diesel." Also Diesel Engineering Service in Oregan had a book detailing how to install Perkins 4/6 cylinder diesels into pickups. These books are no longer available. He'd like if someone would sell him these book or tell him where to find other books detailing gasoline to diesel engine swaps. Call him at (914) 266-8239.

QUESTION — Leon Stoltzfus, Leola, would like to know where to purchase the round juicing disk for an Atlas Juicer made by Juice Master Mfg., Co., Model 36. No. D12041.

ANSWER — Windy Knoll Produce, Nottingham, wanted to know why so many sweet potatoes are black or dark skinned this year and how to obtain a better quality sweet potato. Thanks to Norman Knopp, Jarrettsville, Md., for sending detailed information, which is too long to reprint in its entirety. He is willing to answer questions if you call him at (410) 692-6788. In essence, he writes that spots are symptoms of scurf infection. Only scurf-free sweet potatoes should be used as seed roots, which should be treated with an effective fungicide such as Mertect 340. Plant in fields free of fungus (rotate sweet potatoes every 3 to 4 years).

ANSWER — Durwood Tuttle, Knoxville, wanted the words to a song sung by Lee Moore on a Nashville record called "The Cat Came Back." Thanks to Mary Rook, Newville, for sending the words. She writes that she uses the song as a novelty number for her senior chorus, "Happy Tones." Audiences enjoy it, she writes. We also received several different versions, but the lyrics are offensive to cat lovers and would not be considered "politically correct" in this day and age.

The Cat Came Back

Freddie Wilson had a cat that he didn't want to keep. He offered him for free and he tried to sell him cheap. He called upon the preacher on Sunday for advice. The preacher said, "Yes, leave him here, It would be so nice.

Refrain: But the cat came back, he wouldn't stay away. He was sitting on the porch the very next day. The cat came back, he didn't want to roam. The very next day it was "Home, Sweet Home."

Freddie put him on a ship and they headed for Ceylon. The ship was overloaded more than 20,000 ton. Not far away from shore the cargo ship went down. There wasn't any doubt about it, everybody drowned.

Refrain

Then he put the cat aboard with a man in a balloon, who would give the cat away to the man in the moon. The ballon it didn't rise, it burst in bits instead, and 10 miles from the spot, they found the man dead.

Refrain.

ANSWER — L. Beiler, Bird-in-Hand, wanted to know when and how short puzzy willows should be trimmed. Thanks to Fran Westfall, New Oxford, who writes that she and her husband had a beautiful tree. They gave numerous bunches away and remembers trimming all the real tall limbs from the top some years, but mostly nothing. The garden books don't mention the need for pruning but do mention the need to give the tree lots of water.

ANSWER — Robert Stephens wanted to know who showed the appleyard ducks at the Bloomsburg Fair. Rev. Roland Romig wrote that he did. For more information, write to him at 221 N. Elmer Ave., Sayre, PA 18840.

Farm Show Welcomes Aquaculture Students

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Not only has state government recently passed a law recognizing aquaculture as agriculture for the first time, but the 1999 Pennsylvania State Farm Show is to feature its first aquaculture competition.

Along with the rest of the major commodity promotion organizations, the Pennsylvania Aquaculture Association has for several years supported and manned a food booth in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

The sale of just-baked, fresh fish fillet sandwiches with the option of trout, tilapia, catfish or hybrid striped bass has added greatly to the hearty smorgasbord of Pennsylvania-raised foods offered the visiting general public through the Pennsylvania Food Court area of the Farm Show.

The vision for the 1999 Farm Show includes more fish.

A display aquarium with student-raised tilapia swimming around; a seafood counter-like display with freshly dressed fish on ice on display; filleting demonstrations by aquaculture students.

The seafood counter display and fish cooking demonstrations are to be in the Food Pantry area of the Farm Show. The Food Pantry is an area where established Pennsylvania Food manufacturers — chips, pretzels, candy, etc. — are allowed to set up displays and demonstrations, frequently providing taste-testing samples.

There are other new aspects to the vision of the 1999 Farm Show — such as its first art show — but the aquaculture competitions can be construed as a sign of the acceptance and strength of the aquaculture industry in the state, and as a subject in the classroom.

The newly established Aquaculture Department of the Pennsylvania State Farm Show has a competition targeted toward high school students involved in school aquacultural projects.

The general rules, point system and premiums are listed in the official 1998 Farm Show premium booklet, available through the Farm Show office in Harrisburg.

Those interested in entering should immediately call Charles Itle, at (717) 787-2905; or show chairman Brent Blauch at (717) 266-4577.

According to the general rules, the purpose of the exhibit/competition is, "... to support the educational programs in aquaculture and promote consumer interest in farm-raised fish products."

There are five classes of competition planned — Class 1 is live fish; Class 2 is fresh killed and cleaned fish; Class 3 is freshly dressed fish in combination; Class 4 is a filleting demonstration; and Class 5 is a rate of gain contest.

Exhibition and demonstration are prominent themes in the competition.

As a general rule, exhibitors are to focus on freshness, preparation, and aquatic husbandry. Entries also are to include displays of fish raised by students.

The classes are to be judged on fish quality, freshness, and presentation.

For now, its first year, only tilapia grown in Pennsylvania by the exhibitor teams may be represented, and may only include tilapia which were hatched in 1998. A team can consist of two or more students.

According to the rules, eligibility is "... open to high school students formed as teams from schools which carry an aquaculture project of the specie being exhibited, under the supervision of the Penn State University Agricultural Extension Service, or of a Pennsylvania vocational agricultural instructor.

Eligibility is only for those students who participate in the care of the fish entered for exhibit.

In order to enter, there are two steps to follow.

The first step is registration and identification.

Teams have to submit an entry form containing the identity of the school; teams members; advisor; the numbers, types and sizes of fish; and any other information as may be required, according to the class of competition.

The second step is to get the fish to the Farm Show.

Depending on the classes selected for the entry submission, there are some special considerations.

For the live fish competition (Class 1), 10 live fish are to be delivered to the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg between noon and 6 p.m., on Jan. 8 or Jan. 9, by appointment.

The live fish are to remain sealed in a transit container for at least four hours. The fish are to be judged upon arrival.

No fish showing signs of contagious or infectious disease, or external parasites will be allowed entry to the show.

Fish consigned for processing during or immediately following the show must not be treated with any drugs or biologics (considering labeled withdrawal limits) prior to slaughter.

The live fish class is limited to 15 different entries.

Of the 10 fish comprising an entry, one of them is to be selected for live display in the Pennsylvania Food Pantry, during Farm Show week.

The rest of the live fish, after live judging, can be used for the Class 4 filleting demonstration, or sold directly to the Pa. Aquaculture Association, which is to fillet, cook and sell the fish at its stand in the Pennsylvania Food Court.

For Class 2 entries, the fresh fish must be delivered during the same hours cited for live fish. Entries are to remain sealed on ice in new, leak-proof, commercially acceptable transit containers (no submitting entries in reused containers).

Class 3 entries are called, "Fresh dressed combination."

What that means is that the fish are fresh and they have been cleaned and made ready for cooking, according to one of three different ways commonly displayed in commercial seafood cases — gilled and eviscerated (means entrails removed and body cavity clean, and the red gills removed from the head, but the head still on, and the skin and fins still on); beheaded and eviscerated; and skinned and boneless fillets.

(Of course, depending upon the species and its proposed use, there are other variations of display case readiness. However, this is a contest that has to remain less complicated than real life, and it involves one species.)

The first place winner is to be on display in the Food pantry, and the remaining fish are to be entered in the food court booth or used for cooking demonstrations.

In Class 4, the filleting demonstration, those who exhibit entries in either Class 1 or Class 2 can participate by filleting nine of their entries into skinless/boneless fillets.

Class 5 is for rate of gain, and through the competition, awards are to be offered for all Class 1 and Class 2 entries which have shown above average weight gain during the 14 weeks immediately prior to the show.

Due to the newness of the competition, it appears possible that the rate of gain contest may not be practical this year. It involves identifying through tagging, a group of fish that have had weights verified before the start of the 14-week period by an county agriculture extension agent, or a school agriculture instructor.

The contest and the planned displays are expected to attract interest.

Across the state, there are a number of school aquaculture projects involving the raising of tilapia. As awareness of the Farm Show aquaculture competition increases, participation is expected to follow.

Win Some 'Dough'

(NAPS)—By sharing the secret of a successful bake sale, non-profit organizations can win themselves a lot of dough.

It's part of the Betty Crocker Bake Sale Competition, a contest for charitable organizations and schools, set up to celebrate the 50th anniversary of cake mix.

Bake sales have been a tasty way to raise money for generations of Americans. Now, some groups, such as little league, hospitals, churches and the like, may be able to get even more bread for their cakes. The grand prize winner will get $5,000. Another 20 runner-up prizes of $1,000 each will also be awarded.

Layer cake mix first made its way into American homes for testing in 1948 followed by national distribution. Over the years, Betty Crocker mixes have changed to reflect the preference of customers, with the newest change combining the Betty Crocker and Hershey's brands. As part of its anniversary celebration, Betty Crocker, America's best-selling brand of dessert mixes, now has America's favorite chocolate, Hershey's in all 34 chocolate dessert mixes, including SuperMoist layer cake.

To enter the contest, non-profit groups must submit four bake sale recipes, at least one of which must use Betty Crocker SuperMoist Devil's Food Cake Mix made with Hershey's cocoa plus tips for a successful bake sale table.

A winning recipe may be something like this Betty Crocker 50th Anniversary recipe for Chocolate Ganache Cake.

Chocolate Ganache Cake

1 package Betty Crocker SuperMoist devil's food cake mix
1 tub Betty Crocker Rich & Creamy chocolate ready-to-spread frosting
1/3 cup whipping (heavy) cream
1/2 cup Hershey's semi-sweet chocolate chips
Hershey's Skor or Heath English toffee bits, if desired

Heat oven to 350°. Prepare, bake and cook cake mix in two 8- or 9-inch round pans as directed on package.

Brush crumbs off cake. Place 1 layer, top side down, on plate. Spread 1/3 cup frosting almost to edge. Place other layer, top side up, on frosted layer. Frost side with thin coat first to seal crumbs; then frost side and top, spreading top smooth and flat.

Heat whipping cream in 1-quart saucepan over medium heat until hot (do not boil). Remove from heat; stir in chocolate chips until melted and smooth. Let stand 5 minutes. Pour carefully onto top center of frosted cake; spread to edge, allowing some to drizzle down side. Garnish with toffee bits. Refrigerate uncovered about 1 hour or until chocolate is set. Refrigerate any remaining cake.

The bake sale must be held between September 15, 1998 and February 15, 1999. Entries must be postmarked by February 15, 1999. They will be judged on taste, appearance, originality and creativity of the recipes; table presentation; and originality and viability of the tips.

Mail entries to: Betty Crocker's 50th Anniversary Bake Sale Competition, 245 Eighth Avenue, Suite 236, New York, NY 10011.

For complete rules, call 1-800-446-1898, or visit the website: www.BettyCrocker.com

ANSWER — Martha Martin, Mount Joy, that to make different flavors of angel food cake, mix angel food cake as directed on your recipe, then swirl in a small package of dry Jell-O before baking. If a solid color is preferred, thoroughly mix in Jell-O.

Thanks to Esther Mae Burkholder, Mertztown, for sending this recipe.

Flop Proof Angel Food Cake

1½ cups plus 1 egg white

Beat egg whites until frothy. Add ½ teaspoon salt and 1½ teaspoon cream of tartar. Beat to very stiff peaks. Slowly add 1 cup granulated sugar.

By hand, fold in the following mixture that has been sifted together:

1 cup flour
1½ cups confectioners' sugar

1 teaspoon almond flavoring

Pour mixture into tube pan, level with spatula. Bake 35 minutes. Allow to cool in pan at least one hour upside down.

To make a flavored cake, add 3 tablespoons of any flavored Jell-O combined with the cup of sugar that is added to the cake.

ANSWER — A Snyder County reader wanted a recipe for white chocolate mousse cake. Thanks to Eileen Greenaway, Somerville, N.J., for sending a recipe that she writes is not as complicated as it looks and is well worth the effort.

Chocolate Mousse Meringue Cake With Raspberry Sauce

¾ cup confectioner's sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
8 large egg whites
¼ teaspoon cream of tarter
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup granulated sugar
5½ -ounces white chocolate
1½ sticks unsalted butter
3 large egg yolks
1 cup well-chilled heavy cream
4 large egg whites
2¼ teaspoons granulated sugar

Preheat oven to 200 degrees.

Line two baking sheets with parchment paper. Using bottom of a 10-inch spring form pan as a guide, trace a circle on each piece of parchment paper and turn paper over (circle will show through). Into a bowl, sift together confectioners' sugar and cornstarch.

In a large bowl with an electric mixer, beat egg whites with cream of tarter until they hold soft peaks. Gradually add granulated sugar, beating until meringue holds stiff peaks. Fold in confectioners' sugar gently.

Spread meringue in the circles on the parchment paper; bake in upper and lower thirds of oven, switching halfway through baking, two hours total. Leave meringue rounds in turned off oven at least four hours.

Make chocolate mousse: Chop chocolate and cut butter into small pieces and melt over low heat, stirring until smooth. Transfer to a large chocolate mixture. Beat cream until it just holds stiff peaks and fold into chocolate mixture. With cleaned beaters (egg whites will not get stiff if any grease is on them) beat egg whites with sugar until they hold stiff peaks and fold in chocolate mixture.

Assemble the cake: Trim meringue rounds, if necessary, to fit in a spring form pan with bottom rolled edge down. Fit a meriungue round in pan and spread evenly over mousse. Top with remaining round and spread the remaining mousse. Chill cake, loosely covered at least 4 hours or up to a day. Run a thin knife around edge of cake and remove side of pan.

Raspberry sauce: 2 cups raspberries
3 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon fresh lime juice

Puree ingredients until smooth and pour through a fine sieve, pressing out solids. Cover and chill.

Coping With Alzheimer's Disease

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia, Co.) – Approximately four million Americans are living with a disease that robs them of their memories and their ability to take care of themselves. It is Alzheimer's disease, and there is no known cure.

According to a 1993 survey, 19 million Americans said they had a family member with Alzheimer's disease. These family members must not only take care of their loved one, who is no longer able to care for himself or herself, but must deal with the loss of the person they once knew. In addition there are financial strains placed on the family, and a series of hard decisions and sacrifices that affect the entire family.

More than 7 out of 10 people with Alzheimer's disease live at home. Almost 75% of the home care is provided by family and friends. the remainder is "paid" care costing an average of $12,500 per year. Families pay almost all of the out-of-pocket, because Medicare does not cover the cost of chronic care. Meanwhile, the average cost for an Alzheimer's patient to live in a nursing home is $42,000 per year, but can exceed $70,000 per year in some areas of the country.

One of the biggest problems facing Alzheimer's families is what they feel they must face this trial alone. Many feel it is a private family matter that the family must deal with. Others feel they cannot afford the many services that are available to help Alzheimer's families such as respite care, adult day care, or in-home care. November is National Alzheimer's Awareness Month, supported by the Alzheimer's Association of Southeastern Pennsylvania. The Alzheimer's Association of Southeastern Pennsylvania is here to help local families who are facing these difficult decisions, and are unsure of where to turn. One woman who has enlisted the help of the Alzheimer's Association of Southeastern Pennsylvania is Miriam Burnett.

By 1983, Miriam knew that there was something wrong with her mother, Mildred Harris. Mildred was no longer able to function as the clerk at her church. She had difficulty organizing and keeping track of the cookie sale for her Girl Scout Troop. Mildred's fiends from church called Miriam to tell her that they worried about Mildred's driving ability. Suddenly one day, her employers suggest to her that she retire that day. Miriam decided it was time to take her 72-year old mother to the doctor. Like one out of every 10 persons over the age of 65, Mildred Harris has Alzheimer's disease.

For ten years, Miriam and her family were the primary caregivers for Mildred. They faced some difficult problems. Mildred was often frustrated by her inability to remember things, by her confusion. She often lashed out at her husband and began to beat him. Her husband was also elderly and frail and could not handle these bouts of frustration alone. Often Miriam had to travel at a moment's notice from her home in West Philadelphia to her mother's house in North Philadelphia to help calm her mother down. The disease progressed so quickly that for two years Miriam was living with her mother while trying to maintain her own household as well.

But Mildred and Miriam were not alone during this time. Miriam notes that she contacted the Alzheimer's Association of Southeastern Pennsylvania less than a year after her mother's diagnosis.

"After calling the Alzheimer's Association back in 1984, I became aware of all the resources available to families caring for an Alzheimer's patient, particularly respite and day care. Those are the types of things that many folks do not realize are available," Miriam notes. The Alzheimer's Association of Southeastern Pennsylvania and Miriam began a partnership back in 1984 that is still going strong to this day.

As Mildred progressed through the stages of Alzheimer's, more help was needed to insure her safely and comfort. For Miriam this meant utilizing respite care, day care and in-home care for her mother. She admits that she was very hesitant in making the decision to let others care for her mother, but relied on the Alzheimer's Association of Southern Pennsylvania to help her through this difficult time.

"I was very concerned, because I wouldn't know what was happening while I was not with my mother. I wanted to insure that the caregivers were living up to my standards of care. The Alzheimer's Association helped me get in touch with very qualified people," Miriam said. Miriam continued to care for her mother at home until 1993, when Mildred entered an Alzheimer's facility full-time.

With this step came more worries than Miriam had counted on. "Having my mother in a facility did not relieve the stress as much, because I still had serious concerns, but little control over my mother's care."

She enlisted the help of the Alzheimer's Association of Southeastern Pennsylvania support group she had been a part of for so long to help her vent her fears and frustrations. After a few years, Miriam became the co-faciliator of her support group. And her work with the Alzheimer's Association of Southeastern Pennsylvania, the people who helped her when she needed it most, did not end there.

Since she began calling the Alzheimer's Association of Southeastern Pennsylvania for help and information, Miriam has worked on the chapter's Helpline, its minority outreach program, and also has sat on the board of directors and acted as president of the chapter. She notes that she has seen a lot of changes in the organization, mostly in regards to the growth of the chapter. "But the Alzheimer's Association of Southeastern Pennsylvania is still dedicated to bringing help and hope to area families coping with Alzheimer's, just as it was back in 1984 when I first called."

Miriam counted on the Alzheimer's Association of Southeastern Pennsylvania to help her through a potentially devesting time for her and her family. The Alzheimer's Association of Southeastern Pennsylvania realizes the huge impact Alzheimer's has not only on the patients, but their families and caregivers as well. Angus Association Develops Centralized Ultrasound Processing For Carcass Information

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The American Angus Association, headquartered here, is on the leading edge of developing new ways to use ultrasound measurements in their carcass expected progeny differences (EPDs). A two-year research program, part of the Association's long-range goals, is part of a project with Iowa State University, Ames, Iowa

The American Angus Association Centralized Ultrasound Processing (AAACUP) is a program that will allow Angus producers to obtain and utilize carcass EPDs from live animals. The ultrasound images will be scanned by specially trained participating technicians, and interpreted by one staff of highly trained technicians in the central laboratory. This system offers producers an alternative method of obtaining carcass EPDs for live yearling cattle and their parents without going through the conventional harvest process.

The AAACUP lab at Iowa State began accepting ultrasound images in January 1998. In the lab, a lab manager and a select group of trained interpreting technicians evaluate the images for quality assurance, and interpret them for 12th/13th rib fat thickness, ribeye area, rump fat thickness and percent intramuscular fat.

"As we prepare to enter the 21st century, we must be prepared to embrace change if change is needed," said John Crouch, director of performance programs with the American Angus Association. "The inclusion of ultrasound technology in evaluating live animals for carcass merit is a change that is greatly needed. Not only will it enhance current technology, it will allow our industry to more quickly identify seedstock with the genetic ability to improve carcass characteristics."

Since January, images from more than 7,000 Angus yearling bulls, replacement heifers, and feedlot cattle have been processed by AAACUP. Once the images are interpreted, the data is merged with barn-sheet information from the Association and electronically submitted to the Association. The Association adjusts the data to age contestants, and contemporary group ratios are calculated. The information is finally submitted back to the breeder. The process normally happens within seven days from the time the animals are scanned.

"Our goal is to provide ultrasound data collected on yearling seedstock that will allow for the calculation and utilization of EPDs for carcass traits from these ultrasound measurements," said Craig Hays, AAACUP laboratory director at Iowa State.

Producers will be able to obtain a separate set of EPDs from the ultrasound for ribeye area, rib fat thickness, rump fat thickness and percent marbling in the fall of 1999. The EPDs will be calculated only on sires whose progeny are scanned in 1999; however, the 1998 data will be used to strengthen contemporary groups and improve accuracy.

In an effort to maintain uniformity, only images that are scanned by trained technicians are accepted by AAACUP. In September, a training workshop was conducted at Iowa State to train and qualify technicians According to Crouch, 39 people participated in the training Once they are accepted into the program, they sign a contract with the Association. The technicians are requalified on an annual basis.

A list of participating technicians is available by contacting Angus Herd Improvement Records (AHIR) Department at the Association or Craig Hays at Iowa State's centralized processing lab. There is no cost to the producer, other than the ultrasound technician's fees.

For more information on AAACUP, contact Crouch at the American Angus Association at (816) 383-5100, or access the Association's website at www.angus.org.

Nine More Pa. Counties Eligible For Disaster Aid

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Tom Ridge announced that farmers in nine additional counties will be eligible to receive disaster aid for damage to their farms because of severe storms and excessive rain in late May and early June.

Family farmers in Bradford, Erie, McKean, Pike, Potter, Susquehanna, Tioga, Warren, and Wayne counties are eligible because they are contiguous to New York counties that have been named as primary disaster areas.

Farmers in these counties join those in 27 other Pennsylvania counties declared eligible at the request of Gov. Ridge because of severe storms, tornados, and flooding. The request was made as part of the Presidential declaration for relief, June 3.

Eligible family farmers can apply for Farm Service Agency (FSA) emergency loans.

"It's been a difficult growing season for farmers affected by severe weather, and this official declaration will offer some relief," Ridge said.

Eligible counties in Pennsylvania announced previously this year were Allegheny, Beaver, Berks, Pike, Somerset, Susquehanna, and Wyoming. The contiguous counties also named to receive assistance were Armstrong, Bedford, Bradford, Butler, Cambria, Chester, Fayette, Lackawanna, Lancaster, Lawrence, Lebanon, Lehigh, Luzerne, Monroe, Montgomery, Schuylkill, Sullivan, Washington, Wayne, and Westmoreland.

Since Erie, McKean, and Warren counties were named as contiguous counties on July 7 under the original presidential disaster declaration for the same disaster, the termination date for accepting Farm Service Agency (FSA) emergency loan applications for physical and production losses will remain March 8, 1999.

For counties not previously named for the same disaster, the termination date for accepting FSA emergency loan applications for physical and production losses will be March 22, 1999. The current interest rate is 3.75 percent.

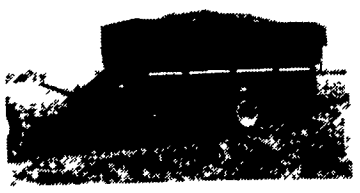
Millcreek Introduces High-Capacity Row Mulcher

BIRD IN HAND (Lancaster Co.) – Millcreek Manufacturing introduces a new high-capacity version of its row mulcher, a machine that applies compost ad organic mulch in rows for agricultural applications.

The new Model 2000 Row Mulcher has a 20 cubic yard capacity and is capable of creating mulch rows up to 1/2 mile long with one load.

Millcreek Row Mulchers are widely used on a variety of crops, including grapes, blueberries and other bramble fruits, citrus and other orchard fruits, some vegetables, and for nursery stock.

The Model 2000 Row Mulcher helps make mulch application more efficient for growers, typically saving 2/3 of the time and labor compared to conventional application methods. The new Model 2000 Row Mulcher applies 20 cubic yards of mulch in rows in approximately 15 to 20 minutes, depending on machine settings.



The Millcreek Model 2000 Row Mulcher applies 20 cubic yards of organic mulch as fast as 20 minutes. It can spread a 1/2 mile long mulch row in a single load.

"We have tried to make compost application more efficient for growers," said Joe Glick, Millcreek president. "The use of compost and organic mulching materials helps reduce the need for herbicide application for weed suppression, helps retain soil moisture, and can help improve soil conditions. We have adapted simple, proven spreader technology to help more growers make more extensive use of mulch and compost in their cultivation programs."

The Millcreek Row Mulcher allows a single operator to apply compost and mulch to a typical acre of rows in about two hours, depending on crop spacing Operators can adjust the mulch bed size from 12 inches to 84 inches wide and from 1/2 inch to 12 inches deep.

Contest Winner Attends Sorghum Meeting

RENO, Nev. – Greg Manners, of Ringoes, N.J., recently attended the 1998 National Grain Sorghum Producers Annual Meeting held here as a guest of Dekalb Genetics Corporation.

Manners earned the trip as the New Jersey first place winner in the 1997 National Grain Sorghum Yield and Management Contest. The winning entry in the no-till Dryland division of the contest was won with Dekalb Brand DK36 yielding 90.76 bushels per acre. He joined a total of 43 state and three national winners who earned their awards with a Dekalb grain sorghum hybrid.

In addition to a winning sorghum crop, Manners grows hay, wheat, corn, oats and rye. He also has 50 head of beef cattle. He has earned the state first place award in the sorghum yields contest for several consecutive years, and also operates a Dekalb seed dealership.

Manners joined approximately 400 top sorghum producers and contest winners from across the nation at the NGSP annual meeting. The program included education sessions, entertainment and an awards banquet. The next NGSP Annual Meeting and Research Conference is slated for Tucson, Ariz. Feb. 21-23.

Peterson Named Emerging Technologies Manager

DES MOINES, Iowa – Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., recently promoted R. Todd Peterson to emerging technologies manager within the agronomy sciences department of the company's North American Seed division.

Peterson was formerly precision farming specialist within the agronomy sciences department. The change reflects the expanding role Pioneer Hi-Bred is playing in cutting-edge agricultural technology for its customers, including precision farming and other emerging agronomic and information technologies in crop production.

Peterson leads a group of scientists and agronomists that helps Pioneer customers adopt these new technologies. The team conducts and coordinates precision farming research, delivers educational programs to growers and supports the Pioneer field sales team in helping customers incorporate new technologies into their farming operations. The group will continue research on the accuracy of yield monitors and mapping systems, the use of variable-rate seeding, the value of site-specific crop management techniques and other innovative agricultural production methods for farmers.

Dr.Todd Peterson

Pioneer began working with precision farming systems in 1993 to better understand how these technologies would impact the company and its customers.

"As crop production steps into the next century, Pioneer is leading the industry in providing customers the agronomic knowledge they need to make the greatest possible profit from our products and today's technologies," said Dr. Paul Carter, Pioneer agronomy sciences manager. "Under Todd's leadership, we combine the practical field level research needed to understand precision farming technologies with a personal approach to delivering research results and recommendations to growers."

Peterson was graduated from Saint Olaf College in Northfield, Minn., with a bachelor's degree in biology/plant ecology. He then earned his master's and doctorate agronomy from the University of Nebraska at Lincoln. He completed postdoctoral work with the USDA-Agricultural Research Service and the University of Minnesota.

Peterson is a member of the American Society of Agronomy and is a certified crop adviser.

Parlor Has Brisket Rail

KANSAS CITY, Mo. – The Olympic Parlor was designed by Alfa Laval Agri and manufactured by Blue Diamond Manufacturing Co. with cows' comfort and ease in mind, as well as dairy producers' time and money.

The parlor is built to be durable, reliable, and require less installation time.

One of the benefits the Olympic features is a brisket rail to provide stall definition. This helps each cow quickly find her stall. Each cow is then positioned in two directions for proper placement to ensure safety and milking comfort.

A regulated air cylinder provides the power to move the brisket rail. A pressure adjustment is placed on each cow's shoulder and brisket to position her against the rumprail and butt pan.

Woods Offers A Range Of Snow-Handling Attachments

ROCKFORD, Ill. – Woods Equipment Company offers a range of snow handling attachments that have been carefully engineered to meet demanding applications in both the landscape and agricultural markets.

In the snow blower market, Woods' series of two stage, tractor-mounted snowblowers feature heavy ribbon-type feeder augers for a variety of snow types, a three blade fan for consistent and continuous snow discharge and a hydraulically operated discharge chute that allows faster performance.

"Our snow blowers and blades focus on performance, no matter what the snow condition," said Lance Hart, marketing manager for snow handling products. "The blowers offer both single-and double-configuration feed augers, which break up icy snow while resisting plugging that can be sauced by heavy, wet snow."

Woods Equipment Company also offers a full range of rear-mount scraper blades rated for tractors from 12 to 150 hp. The RB600, RB700, and RB800 are designed for use in snow removal applications, with a reversible high carbon steel curved cutting edge. They feature 72, 84 and 96-in. working widths, and are rated for tractors up to 60 hp.

Ag Retailers Take Action Against Illicit Drug 'Cooks'

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The illicit drug methamphetamine (meth) is finding its way into communities as "cooks" are stealing anhydrous ammonia from ag retailers and farmers to produce what has been called "the poor man's cocaine."

The Agricultural Retailers Association (ARA) is working to curb the theft of anhydrous ammonia through proactive retailer efforts.

"This is a problem that must be solved by the ag retailers in this country," said ARA Advocacy Team chair John Hester, Nichols Ag Service, LLC, Nichols, Iowa. "The primary burden of finding a solution rests on the shoulders of ag retailers."

ARA staff, representing a retailer perspective, briefed Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) officials Oct. 22 about the situation. "The information will help in determining alternatives or controls retailers can use to prevent these thefts," said Floyd Gaibler, ARA vice president of government affairs.

In addition, ARA formed an emergency anti-meth industry task force. This task force met for the first time on Oct. 28. Task force members included retail dealers, a fertilizer manufacturer, equipment/fitting manufacturers, representatives of the Alliance of State Agri-Business Associations, and Iowa Department of Criminal Investigation.

The group's vision is to eliminate the use of anhydrous ammonia as a reactor in the illegal production of methamphetamine. "Ultimately, we want to establish alternatives that are feasible and cost effective for retailers to prevent anhydrous theft," according to ARA Anti-Meth Issues Task Force Co-Lead Larry Thomsen, West Central Co-op, Ralston, Iowa.

"We want to address this issue from several perspectives," he said. "First we want to find out if there is a way to make the anhydrous ammonia unusable in meth recipes. Second, we are exploring mechanical and security measures that can hinder the thefts."

The task force is also developing further information to help raise public awareness and understanding of the problem.

Task force members left the first meeting with assignments to evaluate alternatives along with their feasibility and cost. "Right now, there's no obvious substance that we can add to the anhydrous ammonia to neutralize its ability to be used in the meth recipe, make it unusable or hazardous to cooks or taint the final meth product," he said. "Likewise, there are no obvious mechanical and security measures that are feasible or cost effective."

Gaibler points out that any additive would be carefully screened to be sure it doesn't have an adverse affect on equipment or on the ammonia's agronomic efficacy.

It is critical ARA is actively involved in helping discover solutions to this growing problem because authorities closely watch and even regulate some meth recipe ingredients. For example, ingredients that can be bought from local drug stores cannot be sold in large quantities. Likewise, other sources of anhydrous ammonia, such as welding shops and lab supply stores, are taking extra steps to secure their ammonia from theft. As these sources become more difficult to tap, thieves will seek out easier, unsecured sources.

Some states, such as Iowa, may seek legislation in an effort to prevent anhydrous ammonia theft. "We want to take part in developing solutions that proactively work for retailers," said Hester. "We don't want confusing legislation that disrupts the retailers' fertilizer business or increases the price of NH_3 to farmers."

Hester fears legislation that would limit the time nurse tanks could hold ammonia. "It's not practical to unload and reload nurse tanks. And in the spring, rain can prevent field work and leave full nurse tanks idle," he said. "We also don't want required security measures that aren't truly effective or add unreasonable extra costs to retailer operations."

ARA is making sure its members are kept up-to-date with the latest information about how to prevent and deal with anhydrous ammonia thefts. In August, ARA sent all members the first issue of the ARA Tip Sheet, which addressed meth, providing facts, background and actions retailers can take.

Thieves often take small amounts of anhydrous ammonia, which is easily unnoticed by retailers, to use as a solvent in producing meth. It can take as little as two cups of anhydrous ammonia to make a useable amount of meth Thieves may use rough, make-shift containers to hold the stolen anhydrous ammonia such as BBQ propane tanks or regular coolers, not realizing that the brass fittings on the propane tanks are corroded by anhydrous ammonia Or they may simply steal an entire nurse tank

There are also public safety considerations to the rural meth problem. For each pound of meth produced, five to six pounds of toxic by-products are produced. Meth cooks often dump these by-products on nearby farmland And chemicals used to make meth are very volatile Explosions and fires often result with inexperienced cooks Ag retailers know the dangers of working with anhydrous ammonia, but meth cooks do not

Woods Equipment Breaks Ground

ROCKFORD, Ill. – Woods Equipment Company, a manufacturer of attachments in the agricultural, turf and grounds, and construction markets, announced the ground breaking of a new 68,000 square feet manufacturing facility in Gardner, Mass.

The new facility will manufacture Wain Roy quick coupler systems for tractor/loader/backhoes and hydraulic excavators, which are manufactured in Hubbardston, Mass. In addition, the new facility will also manufacture other construction equipment marketed by Woods. The new location is only 10 miles away from the Hubbardston factory.

Woods recently acquired Wain Roy to broaden its product offering in the construction equipment market

"One of the benefits of our new location is that we won't lose any of the valuable employees that make Wain Roy a success", said Tom Laird, president and CEO of Woods Equipment Company. In fact, 75 percent of the employees live within 8 to 10 miles of the new facility. Woods expect to hire approximately 30 additional people in the next few years.

Pumpkin Varieties, Health Topics At Field Day

BEDMINSTER (Bucks Co.) — More than two dozen producers and agri-industry representatives were on hand in early October at a Penn State-sponsored Pumpkin Variety Demonstration Field Day here at the Penn-Vermont Farm.

Dr. Michael Orzolek, Penn State horticultural specialist, spoke at the field day, examining pumpkin samples at the site.

Several growers brought pumpkins to inspect.

Orzolek provided information about varieties of pumpkins on display and the makings of a healthy pumpkin at the Bedminster Township farm.

On hand for the field day were Judy and Ken Bupp, of the farm; Scott Guiser, Bucks County extension agent; Emelie Swackhamer, Lehigh-Northampton horticulturalist; and Alan MacNab, Penn State plant pathologist.

Tractor Shares Limelight On NASCAR Circuit

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co) — With a top speed of 12 mph, the New Holland Boomer™ tractor isn't the fastest vehicle on the NASCAR circuit, but it's certainly one of the most popular It's painted like a race car, sounds like a race car, and shares the spotlight with New Holland's Busch Grand National race car at major speedway prerace shows and other special events

"We can hardly get the race Boomer unloaded before people crowd all around it," said Herb Alfrey, parts manager at New Holland's Atlanta branch. "People look at it and chuckle Everyone is amazed at how much it looks like a race car They just fall in love with it "

The crowd-pleasing Boomer is a New Holland compact tractor, painted and modified to look and sound just like its automotive counterpart, down to the red and black pinstriping, the blue and white New Holland name and emblem on top of the hood, and #2 on the side Huge rear flotation tires, straight pipes and lots of gleaming chrome complete the Boomer's sporty look and sound

"We actually have some parts on the race Boomer that are exactly like the parts used on the race car," said Herb Alfrey "If you open the hood, you'll see some of the same types of hydraulic lines and water lines "

The similarities between the two, however, are purely cosmetic Unlike the New Holland Chevrolet Monte Carlo race car, which qualifies at speeds exceeding 180 mph, the 27 hp race Boomer can reach a top speed of only 12 mph.

"We have a lot of fun with it," said Dave Knight, manager for compact tractors, who originated the idea for the race Boomer "We built the race Boomer to tie in with our NASCAR promotion, and the fans seem to really enjoy the novelty of it."

For all its fun, the race Boomer has a serious purpose "Even though thousands of fans go to the races and see the New Holland car, they might not know that New Holland makes compact tractors," Knight said "The Boomer is a very popular compact tractor It's the perfect size for the weekend farmer who has few acres as well as for landscapers and people who do grounds maintenance work The tractor is made in Georgia and the main market for it closely matches the audience of NASCAR races It's a great way to promote the tractor."

Dr. Michael Orzolek, left, with Judy and Ken Bupp at the pumpkin variety day in Bucks County.

Coalition Hosts First Pa. Field Day

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co) — The Pennsylvania Grazing Lands Forage Conservation Coalition hosted the first Pennsylvania State Grazing Field Day, pasture walk, and tour of Bob Hockenberry's Project Grass Beef Farm in northern Huntington in October

Fifty-two people and 26 Pennsylvania counties were present

The Pennsylvania Grazing Lands-Forage Conservation coalition (G L - F C C) is a farmer/producer driven, non-profit board in partnership with NRCS The state grazing field day was paid for by Armstrong County Conservation District, Kittanning, and the G.L F C C executive board of directors

Dr. William Stout of the USDA agricultural research service, University Park, and J B Harold, coordinator of "Project Grass," obtained the speakers for the field day

The goal of the G L F C.C is to get grazing education, technical assistance, and grazing cost - share to Pennsylvania producers.

Book By Braund Now Available

A new book entitled Tomorrow Finally Came! is authored by Darwin G. Braund, Ph.D., P.A.S. The book is a result of a 40-year dream to do international work in agriculture. It describes his experiences, frustrations, joys, friends, and contributions during six months as an agricultural advisor in post-communist Poland from June to December 1995. He returned in December 1997 to note changes and visit friends. The last chapter is titled "Tow Years Later."

Braund was raised on a small family dairy and poultry farm in northeastern Pennsylvania with his roots in food animal agriculture. During his professional career he served as an agricultural extension worker in four states, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, New York, and North Carolina. In addition, he spent 25 years in agribusiness with two different employers. It was as a professor of animal science at North Carolina State University that he had the opportunity to become an agricultural advisor in Poland's extension system.

A member of more than a dozen professional organizations, he is co-holder of seveal patents in the U.S. and Canada for breakthroughs in methods of improving feeds for dairy cattle. His alma mater, Penn State University, has twice honored him with Distinguished Alumnus and Alumni Service Awards. He was also named Distinguished Alumnus by Delta Theta Sigma Fraternity at Penn State University. Upon retirement from N.C. State University, Braund became curator of the Pasto Agricultural Museum at Penn State's Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research center at Rock Springs.

The paperback book is 8 1/2 x 5 1/ 2 with 230 pages and a cost of $17.50 that includes postage and handling. Published by The Chapel Hill Press, Chapel Hill, N.C. it is available from the author.

Landscapers Conference Set In Glassboro

CLAYTON, N.J. – Landscapers from a six-county area of southern New Jersey will be meeting at Masso's Crystal Manor in Glassboro Dec. 2.

Rutgers Cooperative Extension and the New Jersey Nursery and Landscape Association, South Chapter, will sponsor an all-day seminar.

Call the South Jersey Landscape Conference, distinguished speakers from Rutgers University and businesses in and out of New Jersey will be presenting information applicable to landscapers, landscape maintenance personnel, landscape designers, and grounds maintenance people.

According to Jeff Link, NJNL - south chapter chair, back by popular demand will be a panel of landscape businessmen. "These successful landscapers will share some tips and ideas they use in their businesses on people management, marketing, sales, and customer relations," said Link.

Charles Vander Kooi, nationally known consultant on people and business management, will be the keynote speaker. "We have had Mr. Vander Kooi at other conferences in northern New Jersey and are excited about having landscapers in this part of the state hear him," said Link. "He will discuss pricing, bidding, labor costing, ordering, overhead allocation, negotiation, profit, and people management."

Two important topics, integrated pest management and turf management, will be featured in the afternoon session. Joe Heckman, soil fertility specialist with Rutgers Cooperative Extension, will present new information on the management of grass clippings, said Jerry Frecon, agricultural agent with Rutgers Cooperative Extension.

"He will show that not only is removing glass clippings from the lawn unnecessary, leaving is better than many types of fertilization," said Frecon.

Deborah Smith-Fiola, integrated pest management Agent with Rutgers Cooperative Extension, will discuss the economic and environmental impacts of using IPM in lawns and landscape settings. Smith's presentation is based on her many years of research and work with landscapers in other areas of New Jersey.

An all-day trade show will be held as part of the conference with 25 companies displaying their products. New Jersey pesticide applicator units will be given to those applicators attending the entire program.

Registration information is available by contacting Jerome L. Frecon at (609) 863-0110.

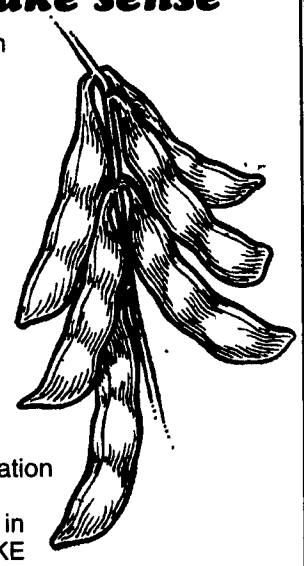
Sell your beans?
"It just doesn't make sense"

1. Why loose the 18% high energy oil in your own beans?
2. Why let the soybean processor take the valuable lechicin?
3. Why forfeit 50% of the metabolizable energy over SBM?
4. Why pay storage, trucking and shrink?



Be sensible!
Let SCHNUPP'S custom roast your Soybeans
